Where Passion & Possibilities
Meet.

ABOUT OUR BRAND

Our brand, Passion Made Possible, celebrates the story of our island-state's ingenuity. It captures the spirit of Singapore, where people with vision and drive forge new possibilities and bring about meaningful change.

This story of Singapore is a story
of our past.

With the concerted efforts of our people, Singapore has transformed from a humble trading port to a first-world country in less than 50 years.

This story of Singapore is a story of our people.

Our founding fathers exemplify our passion. As they developed a young, independent country with limited natural resources, they also planned for green sanctuaries to be created for Singaporeans and the community. Today, Singapore is known as a City in a Garden.

This story of Singapore is a story we continue to build.

It is passion that has grown gardens into Supertrees; preserved our distinctive hawker recipes; and taken our designers from local to global. It is this same spirit that inspires our brand tagline, Passion Made Possible.

It celebrates the values of Singaporeans—from those who have achieved great heights, to the people working tirelessly and courageously to turn their dreams into reality.

This is a story for all to tell.

Beneath our glistening city, lies many stories of passionate individuals who have struggled and dedicated their lives to a dream, a cause, a passion, and brought them into reality.

We invite you to join us in sharing these Singapore stories and to bring to life the Passion Made Possible spirit, through products and experiences offered to visitors.

Where Passion & Possibilities Meet.

WELCOME TO SINGAPORE

A gateway to Asia and beyond, Singapore is a young nation full of vigour and a cosmopolitan city brimming with possibilities. We are home to a bustling Central Business District (CBD), a famous shopping street, a thriving arts and entertainment scene, lively dining and drinking spots, and many must-see attractions. Our rich culture and heritage inspire us, while the future promises to be exciting.

Beyond a vibrant city landscape, Singapore is truly a great city because of our passionate people. Our drive for excellence pushes us to chase our dreams and make waves everywhere we go. Singer-songwriter Nathan Hartono constantly inspires with his musicianship and talents, while Singaporean chef Malcolm Lee has turned his life long passion for food into a career and now helms Michelin-starred Candlenut (see Eat & Drink, Celebrity Fine Dining, p119).

We are proud of these achievements, but even prouder of our sense of community, diverse cultures, rich heritage, and all the quirks that make us who we are. Most of all, we love being Singaporean, and we're excited to share our passion for Singapore with our visitors.

OLD MEETS NEW

IN SURPRISING WAYS

In Singapore, history is kept alive through active conservation. One example would be the Chinatown enclave (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p70) where early immigrants settled when they came to Singapore. Today, the area houses fresh lifestyle offerings but still bears markings of its heritage. Visitors will find a blend of old and new, where historic temples and traditional medicinal halls sit alongside hip bars and lifestyle shops.

While dining, shopping and exploring Singapore, visitors will find charming, old-school places that have been woven into the fabric of this cosmopolitan city. One-Michelin-starred restaurant Nouri (see Eat & Drink, Celebrity Fine Dining, p120) has made a quaint shophouse along Amoy Street its home, while The Fullerton Hotel, which was once a municipal building, has since been restored to accommodate travellers.

Our founding fathers had a vision to transform Singapore into a garden city, with recreational spaces, world-class attractions and skyscrapers set amid lush greenery, earning us the moniker—City in a Garden. Despite the challenges and competing priorities in the early days, they held firmly to this passion, which continues to inspire our green evolution.

An example of our passion for nature and sharing our heritage with the world is the over 150-year-old Singapore Botanic Gardens (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p66)—our first and only UNESCO World Heritage Site, just a five-minute drive from the city centre. It features sprawling greens, unique floral and lush foliage worth a day of exploration.

Our network of parks, park connectors linking major green areas, and nature reserves add natural beauty to our living environments while providing a backdrop for our leisure pursuits and family activities.

CULTURES COME TOGETHER

Aside from its Chinese, Malay and Indian heritage, Singapore is also home to other ethnic groups such as Eurasians, Peranakans (Straits-born people of Chinese and Malay/Indonesian heritage) and a growing expatriate population. All these unique and diverse cultures have made Singapore a vibrant and harmonious place to live, work and play in.

FOOD, GLORIOUS FOOD

Food is one of our greatest passions. Where to find the best eats is a common topic among Singaporeans. We are even known to discuss what to have for dinner as we're enjoying lunch!

Our strategic position as a shipping port has long enticed people from around the world to set up home here, creating a melting pot of cultures. Many have brought with them a taste of their homeland but infused local flavours, producing a vibrant culinary scene—from lip-smacking dishes by time-tested hawker heroes to scrumptious creations by award-winning homegrown chefs.

Our openness for different cuisines and culinary trends is evident by the number of food establishments across the island. Our famed hawker centres (open-air food courts) (see Eat & Drink, Hawker Centres, p129) provide a delicious crash course on our multiculturalism. Humble hawkers dedicate their lives to their craft, dishing up tasty fare in the way their forefathers taught them. In fact, some of them—like Mr Chan Hon Meng of MICHELIN Bib Gourmand Hawker Chan went on to gain international appreciation for his craft.

Food connoisseurs will be spoilt for choice in Singapore. Hip and trendy spots such as indie cafés and craft beer bars; Michelin-starred restaurants such as Candlenut (see Eat & Drink, Celebrity Fine Dining, p119) and Odette (see Eat & Drink, Celebrity Fine Dining, p121); and celebrity chef establishments like Adrift by David Myers and table65 by Richard van Oostenbrugge (see Eat & Drink, Celebrity Fine Dining, p118)—our dynamic and vibrant dining scene has it all.

SINGLISH THE COLLOQUIAL SINGAPORE ENGLISH

Singapore is a multicultural society made up of four main ethnic groups with four official languages—Bahasa Melayu, Mandarin, Tamil and English, which is the main language for education and business. Residents of Singapore are also bound together by one common language, Singlish (a colloquial form of English), which is an intriguing blend of words, phrases and grammar rules of the four official languages.

FAST, EFFICIENT AND CONVENIENT

Accustomed to speed and efficiency in almost all areas of life, we zip from place to place quickly and with ease. Our integrated public transport system enables locals and tourists to travel efficiently. The comprehensive network of buses, taxis and the Mass Rapid Transit (MRT) system, which covers the whole island, is an economical way to move around. Visitors will also find that Wi-Fi hotspots are widely available throughout the island.

SINGLISH FOR BEGINNERS

At the hawker centre or food court

Shiok: Expresses appreciation and delight.
Chope: A term used to reserve or call dibs on something.

Other common Singlish expressions

Alamak: Akin to "Oh my god!", "Alamak" is an exclamation of shock or surprise.
Bo jio?: Translated from Hokkien, it means not inviting someone along to an event or activity.
Got lobang?: "Lobang" is a Malay word that means 'hole' or 'gap'. In this context, it means opportunity or connections.
Huat ah! "Huat" means to prosper while "ah" is used for emphasis. "Huat ah!" is usually shouted out for luck.
Kiasu: This word refers to "one who is afraid to lose out to someone else".
Paiseh: A phrase of the Hokkien dialect, "Paiseh" is an expression of embarrassment in a situation.
Relax lah! "Lah" gives stronger emphasis to a sentence. "Relax lah" is said to someone who is upset, angry or nervous.
Steady lah! Describes someone who is calm and easy-going, or who agrees to your plans.

A SHOPPING PARADISE

We dare say whatever visitors are looking to buy, they will most likely find it here in Singapore. The best place to start is Orchard Road (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p85). Spanning almost 2.2 kilometres, the bustling shopping district has flagship maisons by luxury brands, shops by international brands and big departmental stores. There is something for everyone with products by up-and-coming local designers, souvenirs, cutting-edge fashion, precious jewellery, homeware, quirky accessories and children's toys. Visitors will score unique and reasonably-priced finds in hip shopping enclaves such as Tiong Bahru, Bugis Street (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p91 and p81 respectively) and Haji Lane (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p75). Shoppers can find beautiful products with thoughtful stories in works of artisanal jeweller Carolyn Kan and her playfully, provocative jewellery label, Carrie K. Jewellery (see Shopping, Local Shopping, p154). Fashionistas will love the fusion of modern and heritage in the timeless cheongsam (a body-hugging traditional Chinese dress) designs of Lai Chan (see Shopping, Local Shopping, p147), best known for his combination of traditional techniques and modern influences.

THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT

There is never a dull moment in Singapore, with exciting events happening all year round (see Festivals & Events, p36). There are plenty of family-friendly events for visitors with children, while music lovers can enjoy concerts and music festivals featuring top international artists. For art enthusiasts, Singapore hosts several major art fairs yearly. Whether it's the festive celebration of Chinese New Year or the roar of Formula 1 cars, there's always a party going on somewhere on the island.

LET OUR LOCALS INSPIRE PASSION

TALES AND LEGENDS

- According to legend, Singapore got its name when Sang Nila Utama, a prince from Palembang, Indonesia, caught sight of a lion-like creature while out hunting.
- He established a settlement on the island where he saw the animal and named it 'The Lion City' or Singapura, from the Sanskrit words simha (lion) and pura (city).

Did you know?

- Modern Singapore was founded in the 19th century by Sir Thomas Stamford Raffles, who negotiated a treaty with the local rulers and established Singapore as an entrepôt for trade.
- In 1959, Lee Kuan Yew became the first prime minister of Singapore. A nature lover, he introduced the 'garden city' vision in May 1967 and earned himself the unofficial title of 'Chief Gardener' as he encouraged tree-planting and the creation of parks and green spaces across the island. Today, we are home to more than 300 parks, four nature reserves and the award-winning Gardens by the Bay (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p63).

From hawkers to designers, our sunny island is home to numerous individuals chasing their dreams and ambitions with passion.

Take James Quan and Winnie Chan, for example. The married couple founded Bynd Artisan (see Shopping, Local Shopping, p149), personalised paper and leather atelier, in 2014. The brand revived the dying trade and has since created a community of craftsmen and artisanal collaborators. It is well on its way to become an iconic Singapore brand.

Sasha Wijidessa is another individual who has pursued her passion relentlessly. Forgoing her parents' expectations of a pharmaceutical career, Sarah has made it her life's calling to be an artisan bartender. She dreams to one day create cocktails in her own establishment, inspiring through fresh menus.

These inspiring individuals are passionate about creating new possibilities. For visitors, it is not just what you can do here, but who you can be when you are here. We invite visitors to ignite and rediscover their passions through the possibilities in Singapore.

01

TRIBES & SEGMENTS

There's something for every visitor—no matter the age, passion or agenda. Singapore is more than a destination, we are where passion is made possible.

5 VISITOR SEGMENTS

Early Careers (aged 25–34)

Youthful travellers will find some of the best hidden nightlife spots in unique locations in Singapore. Operation Dagger (see Nightlife & Entertainment, Cocktail and Spirit Bars, p99), on the list of The World's 50 Best Bars 2019, requires visitors to take a journey underground, down a narrow, non-descript stairwell before entering its doors. The heritage-rich Tiong Bahru (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p91) enclave houses a multitude of authentic local delights, trendy cocktail bars and cool cafés. Lovers of arthouse, foreign and classic films are sure to enjoy the art films screened at the indie cinema, The Projector.

Established Careers (aged 40–49)

The more affluent visitors can be inspired by culture and tradition as they discover Peranakan (Straits-born people of Chinese and Malay/Indonesian heritage) culture at The Intan (see Attractions, Arts, Museums & Heritage, p58), a by-appointment-only private museum in a post-war shophouse. Visitors looking for unique finds will appreciate Ong Shunmugam (see Shopping, Local Shopping, p147) a contemporary womenswear label with Asian influences, traditional textile techniques and colours. At restaurants such as the three-Michelin-starred Odette (see Eat & Drink, Celebrity Fine Dining, p121), Foodies can get up-close with world-renowned celebrity chefs like Julien Royer. On the Singapore Flyer (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p85), one of the world's largest observation wheels, visitors can have a sumptuous meal while taking in spectacular views of the city skyline.

Families with Young Children (aged below 12)

Parents with young children can visit family-friendly malls such as VivoCity (see Shopping, Malls, p144) and splash around at the rooftop waterpark in between shopping breaks. The Open Farm Community provides a farm-to-table dining concept, along with farming and recreational activities for all ages to enjoy. Both adults and the young ones can look forward to exciting roving performances, Christmas street-lights and decorations, and in-mall activities during the Christmas on A Great Street festivities (see Festivals & Events, p44).

Active Silvers (aged 55 or above)

The active senior can expect to be immersed in art at galleries like FOST Gallery and Mizuma Gallery in Gillman Barracks (see Attractions, Arts, Museums & Heritage, p53) which feature the works of emerging and internationally acclaimed artists, or dine at one-Michelin-starred restaurant, Corner House (see Eat & Drink, Celebrity Fine Dining, p119). Its nature-themed cuisine, fondly termed by Chef Jason as 'Gastro-Botanica', strikes a balance between the best in fresh vegetable produce and premium quality meats. Those looking for a relaxed getaway can indulge in luxurious spa treatments at a homegrown spa, Spa Esprit (see Shopping, Local Shopping, p153), while explorers can uncover the historic attractions of Singapore through walking tours or bus tours (see Tours, p158).

Business Event Visitors

(Meetings, Incentives, Conferences and Exhibitions)

Attractions that stay open late into the night and well-placed hotels allow business event visitors who are pressed for time to make the most of their leisure time in the city. Visitors can opt for a luxurious stay at 5-star hotels such as The Capitol Kempinski Hotel Singapore, Six Senses Maxwell (see Stay, p30) and The Fullerton Hotel, which are located just a stone's throw away from popular restaurants and drinking holes. NATIVE (see Nightlife & Entertainment, Cocktail & Spirit Bars, p99), on the list of The World's 50 Best Bars 2019, is the perfect spot for business event visitors to unwind while sipping on handcrafted cocktails. Travellers can also indulge in gastronomic experiences at fine dining establishments such as one-Michelin-starred restaurant table65 (see Eat & Drink, Celebrity Fine Dining, p122) or get their retail fix at Singapore's famed shopping district, Orchard Road (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p85).

DON'T JUST PARTICIPATE, BE AN ACTION SEEKER.

Action Seekers looking for heart-pumping, recreational activities or fun-filled spectator action will discover that Singapore is Southeast Asia's premier hub for action and sports. The city houses world-class sporting infrastructure and offers unique sporting activities for thrill-seekers to be part of. With many activities for all ages, Action Seekers can find new and exciting ways to work up a sweat and chase excitement across the island. Families can go on aerial adventures at Mega Adventure Park - Singapore in Sentosa (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p88) or try wakeboarding at Singapore Wake Park, the country's only cable-ski park at East Coast Park. Visitors can also have a go at the 44 adrenaline pumping treetop obstacle courses at Forest Adventure in Bedok (see Attractions, Adventure & Rides, p49) or get a dose of exhilarating Grand Prix Season Singapore (see Festivals & Events, p43).

A hive of heart-pumping activities

Raise the adrenaline limit with these adventurous activities. Sentosa is the perfect spot for Action Seekers to start their trip. Be blown away at iFly Singapore (see Attractions, Adventure & Rides, p49), a simulated indoor skydiving experience in a vertical wind tunnel or get the ultimate thrill rush at AJ Hackett Sentosa (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p88) by dropping 40 metres from the Giant Swing or taking a plunge with the 47-metre-tall Bungy Jump.

A calendar of sporting events all year around

With a full calendar of sporting events all year round, there is a wide range of activities to satisfy an Action Seeker's thirst for a non-stop sporting action and entertainment. Watch the best in the world compete at world class sporting events such as FORMULA 1™ SINGAPORE AIRLINES SINGAPORE GRAND PRIX 2019 and International Champions Cup Singapore (see Festivals & Events, p43 and p42 respectively), or get your heart pumping with sports activities such as volleyball and kayaking at Singapore Sports Hub, an integrated sports, entertainment and lifestyle hub.

DON'T JUST BUY, BE A COLLECTOR.

Singapore is a paradise where Collectors with a passion for shopping can find unique and reasonably priced pieces from both international and local labels. There are many places where Collectors can get their fix—from mega shopping malls with multi-faceted retail options to pop-up events and stores. Singapore designers have been creating everything from art and fashion to quirky accessories, which can be found in trendy malls and chic neighbourhood stores (see Shopping, p138). One success story is Bynd Artisan (see Shopping, Local Shopping, p149), a craft atelier. Its history dates back over 70 years to its founding company and has since gained a strong fan base in Singapore for its handmade books. Collectors will love local indie stores such as Supermama (see Shopping, Top Ten Souvenirs, p139) and LOVE SG, for their range of quirky Singapore-themed products.

Only in Singapore

In Singapore's multicultural environment, every Collector will find a slice of local life to take home. Shops in the cultural enclaves of Chinatown, Little India, Kampong Glam and Katong & Joo Chiat (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p70) have unique, made-in-Singapore souvenirs ranging from food such as bak kwa (barbecued meat slices) and kaya (a traditional jam made from coconut and eggs) to modern cheongsams (a body-hugging traditional Chinese dress). For delightful fragrances that soothe the soul and nourishing body products, visit homegrown brand To Be Calm at 112 Katong and other outlets.

One-of-a-kind experiences

Orchard Road (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p85), Singapore's premier shopping belt, is home to multi-concept stores such as IN GOOD COMPANY (see Shopping, Local Shopping, p147), as well as international brands such as Victoria's Secret, Michael Kors™ and UNIQLO, which have set up flagship stores here. Find unique shop experiences at Design Orchard (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p86), a new space showcasing Singapore's most beloved brands, lauded designers and talented newcomers, or pick up leather crafting at workshops in Naisee. Be sure not to miss out on lifestyle destinations like Jewel Changi Airport and Funan (see Shopping, Malls, p142 and p141 respectively). They offer not just an array of retail and dining options but a fresh perspective on shopping that integrates play, retail and new experiences.

DON'T JUST LOOK, BE A

CULTURE SHAPER.

Culture Shapers who want to immerse themselves in arts and culture will find Singapore an inspiring locale to soak in creative energy and find new perspectives. Apart from being home to local artists who constantly push artistic boundaries across a range of mediums, the city also welcomes international artists to perform and stage shows here. In the Civic District, numerous arts and cultural institutions such as the National Gallery Singapore (see Attractions, Arts, Museum & Heritage, p55), Singapore Art Museum and National Design Centre can be found. For an experiential look into arts, exhibitions at the ArtScience Museum™ (see Attractions, Arts, Museum & Heritage, p51) are not to be missed. Check out events such as the sixth edition of the Singapore Biennale, ending in March 2020, and ART SG 2020 (see Festivals & Events, p44), which entrench Singapore's position as a regional hub for the arts. The annual calendar is filled with a myriad of lifestyle activities to keep Culture Shapers on a packed schedule.

Distinctive activities and creative districts

Visitors can enjoy an array of arts activities that pay homage to our rich, multicultural heritage. Visit Chinatown during the Mid-Autumn Festival celebrations (see Festivals & Events, p42) for plenty of performances and activities, inspired by Chinese culture. To learn about Little India's rich stories, heritage and traditions, check out ARTWALK Little India (see Festivals & Events, p37) where they are brought to life through murals, installations, film screenings and workshops. Another neighbourhood to visit is Tiong Bahru (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p91), which has drawn in artists and indie stores, including BooksActually, a quaint bookstore that stocks local writers. Visitors can also explore the Bras Basah Bugis neighbourhood (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p81)—peppered with art galleries, art institutions and museums.

A forum for exchange of passion for Arts

The city plays host to many signature arts and cultural activities that will appeal to Culture Shapers, as well as art practitioners from around the world. There are many engaging platforms such as ART SG (see Festivals & Events, p44) and Singapore Biennale where passionate local and international talents can exchange ideas and opinions on industry trends.

DON'T JUST SIGHTSEE, BE AN

EXPLORER.

Explorers are constantly seeking to uncover new experiences and cultures in an organic way. As a City in a Garden rooted in multiculturalism and a rich heritage, Singapore offers many places and spaces for travellers to create their own adventure. History enthusiasts will delight in visiting museums or decoding the architecture styles of historic buildings in Singapore (see Attractions, Arts, Museums & Heritage, p51), while nature lovers can check into the wonderful green spaces that dot the city and provide respite from the hustle and bustle of the city (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p60). Explorers looking for more unique activities may check out Singapore's many first-of-its-kind experiences including getting up-close with animals at the Night Safari (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p64), the world's first night zoo, and the S.E.A. Aquarium™, which boasts more than 100,000 marine animals.

For the history buffs

The Singapore story—from a mangrove-filled island to a bustling metropolis—is well-told by our museums, memorials and architecture, and appeals to Explorers seeking to learn more about our city state's journey. National Museum of Singapore (see Attractions, Arts, Museums & Heritage, p56), the oldest museum in Singapore, inspires with stories of Singapore, while Civic District is the place for Explorers to see historically significant architecture that now houses a modern tenant mix of restaurants, galleries and retail shops.

For the nature lovers

Our bountiful green spaces offer Explorers a treasure trove of places to discover. Explorers can visit attractions such as the Singapore Botanic Gardens (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p66), Singapore's first and only UNESCO World Heritage site, or the Southern Ridges, a ten-kilometre trail that connects parks along the southern ridges of Singapore (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p67). Nature lovers can also discover the biodiversity in Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p67) or get in touch with nature at its offshore islands such as Kusu Island, Pulau Ubin, Sisters' Islands and other Southern Islands (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p66).

DON'T JUST EAT, BE A FOODIE.

Singaporeans are obsessed with food and there's no doubt why—the city is a gastronomic playground, with much to tickle the taste buds. Foodies to Singapore have countless options when it comes to eating. The influences of Chinese, Malay and Indian cultures have created a unique variety of heritage-rich flavours rooted in culture and tradition. From tasty traditional fare that locals swear by to experimental modern Singaporean ('mod-Sin') cuisine (see Eat & Drink, Modern Singapore Restaurants, p127) where homegrown chefs put a contemporary spin on local dishes, travellers can work their way through the city's delectable offerings just like a local. With a culinary landscape that has lots of local flavours, award-winning restaurants and trendy dining concepts, every foodie traveller is bound to have a feast.

Local delights / Award-winning and celebrity chef restaurants

Singapore's food scene caters to all budgets and dietary preferences. For wallet-friendly fare, Foodies can head to hawker centres such as Chomp Chomp Food Centre or Lau Pa Sat (see Eat & Drink, Hawker Centres, p130) to enjoy local favourites such as chicken rice, roti prata (South Indian flatbread) and satay (grilled meat skewers) (see Eat & Drink, Local Favourites, p106). Travellers looking to indulge in gourmet food can check out award-winning and celebrity chef restaurants such as CUT by Wolfgang Puck, the one-Michelin-starred steakhouse or National Kitchen by Violet Oon (see Eat & Drink, Afternoon Tea, p117), for a taste of the homegrown chef's authentic Peranakan (Straits-born people of Chinese and Malay/Indonesian heritage) food.

Experiences for the food-obsessed

Beyond hawker centres and restaurants, food lovers can gather and mingle at the numerous food festivals that take place all year round. An unmissable event is the Singapore Food Festival (see Festivals & Events, p41) in July, where visitors can experience the different cuisines in Singapore, dishes that put a modern twist on local favourites and cooking demonstrations. At Chinatown Food Street (see Eat & Drink, Hawker Centres, p129), visitors can enjoy The 50 Cents Fest and savour local dishes from as low as 50 cents (S$0.50). Wine enthusiasts can look forward to the Singapore Wine Fiesta (see Festivals & Events, p44), where they can try over 200 wines from across the globe and attend talks and classes led by wine experts.

DON'T JUST GET TOGETHER, BE A SOCIALISER.

Socialisers, who love to let their hair down and party the night away, will feel right at home in Singapore's thriving lifestyle, entertainment and nightlife scene. With parties, festivals, stand-up comedy gigs and a nightlife scene unlike any other in the world, Socialisers will have no lack of options. Those who love a good tippie can bar hop on a trail of award-winning bespoke bars in Chinatown, while clubbers can dance the night away at the hottest nightspots along the Singapore River (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p89). Immerse in distinctive and diverse entertainment, nightlife experiences, and connect with great company all in the bustling city-state.

An outstanding nightlife scene

Singapore's cosmopolitan setting means there are many trendy places for Socialisers to be seen at. One of the city's biggest nightlife icons is Zouk™ (see Nightlife & Entertainment, Clubs, p101), Asia's top club, which is constantly voted as one of the best dancefloors in the world and is always a hit with clubbers. Socialisers should also spend a night out at 28 HongKong Street (see Nightlife & Entertainment, Cocktail & Spirit Bars, p97), Manhattan Bar and NATIVE (see Nightlife & Entertainment, Cocktails & Spirit Bars, p99 and p99 respectively), which are highly rated and also ranked on the list of Asia's 50 Best Bars 2019. For the ultimate insider's guide into a city filled with music, Socialisers can get the scoop from one of Singapore's own Socialisers—singer-songwriter Nathan Hartono (www.VisitSingapore.com/singapore-itineraries/2-day-guide-to-social-singapore).

An exciting lifestyle calendar

Socialisers can immerse themselves in the city's infectious energy with Singapore's exciting lifestyle calendar, filled with events and activities all year round. The Marina Bay Singapore Countdown (see Festivals & Events, p45) is Singapore's biggest year-end party and promises an unforgettable night out for visitors. The countdown will feature performances by some of the island-state's most beloved entertainers and DJs. The night will culminate in a spectacular firework display to welcome the new year.

DON'T JUST HOST OR ATTEND BUSINESS EVENTS, BE A

PROGRESSOR

CONNECT, NETWORK, GROW AND EXPAND YOUR HORIZON

Progressors looking to connect, collaborate and innovate will find that Singapore has all they need for a seamless and rewarding MICE event. As a gateway to the region, Singapore has extensive global trade and communications networks as well as access to the fast-evolving Asian region and marquee events across multiple industry sectors. Business event visitors will have invaluable opportunities to network and seek business growth. With unique strengths across various areas from banking and finance to infocomm technology and media, the country is at the forefront of innovation. Furthermore, Singapore offers Progressors perfect wind-down activities such as shopping, soaking in a vibrant nightlife scene, dining at award-winning eateries and exploring quaint neighbourhoods between or after business events.

Plan business events with ease

Singapore is a global leader for business events. As the lead government agency for the business events sector in Singapore, the Singapore Exhibition & Convention Bureau™ (SECB) is responsible for helping event professionals, meeting planners and incentive organisers from around the world plan and execute successful events. The bureau provides grants and incentives for Events Organisers such as the Business Events in Singapore (BEiS) scheme and the Approved International Fair (AIF) scheme. For more information on assistance provided by SECB and a calendar of MICE events, visit www.VisitSingapore.com/mice

A seamless MICE leisure experience

Singapore offers a range of different leisure experiences to enhance one's meeting or incentive travel trip, including distinct dining experiences, a vibrant arts scene and world-class shopping venues. After a day of business meetings, Progressors can head to cultural precincts such as Kampong Glam and Katong & Joo Chiat (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p74 and p76 respectively) or swanky malls in the city centre, such as ION Orchard and Raffles City Shopping Centre (see Shopping, Malls, p141 and p143 respectively) for some retail therapy or to savour delectable food offerings.

CHERLY CHANG

Finalist for STA 2019, Fairmont Singapore

"My guests expect the best, I'm here to deliver my best!"

Assistant Manager of Fairmont Singapore, Cherly wows guests with her dedication to exceed guests' expectations and her thoughtful sensitivity to situational needs. Ever willing to make special arrangements to ensure guests have a comfortable stay, Cherly is simply happy when others are as well. Many a time, she would choose to stay beyond her shift or use time during her day off to run errands for specific guest requests. It is no surprise that she is a finalist for Customer Service Excellence for Hotels in the Singapore Tourism Awards 2019 as many guests become raving fans of her over time.

○ Chinese New Year

Chinese New Year, also known as Lunar New Year or the Spring Festival, is undoubtedly the most important event in the Chinese calendar. In Chinese folklore, a mythical beast, 'Nien', used to attack villagers every spring. The colour red and loud noise were the only things able to drive away the beast and hence, they characterise the Chinese celebrations of the new year. During this 15-day festive season, Singapore will be lit up with colourful processions, seasonal markets and lively lion dances. At the heart of the celebrations are family reunion dinners where family members will rush back home—whether from near or far, to share this important meal with their loved ones. In the following days, they will don brand new clothes, symbolising the start of a new year, and visit their relatives whose houses would be thoroughly spring-cleaned to get rid of bad luck. Married relatives will prepare scarlet paper packets with money to bless children and younger relatives with.

Dates: 25–26 Jan 2020

Chinatown Chinese New Year Celebrations

A few weeks prior to Chinese New Year (CNY), the streets of Chinatown (see Neighbourhood, Ethnic Districts, p70) will be decorated with handcrafted lanterns depicting Chinese zodiac animals and symbols. They are part of the CNY Street Light Up, which will be launched with the Official Light Up and Opening Ceremony on 4 January 2020. Happening on 4 January to 22 February 2020, the Street Light Up will also feature lion dancers and fire-eaters who will perform at Kreta Ayer Square. From 3 to 24 January 2020, the Festive Street Bazaar will take place along Chinatown's streets. The neighbourhood will be lined with booths overwhelmed with goods of red and gold to symbolise good luck and prosperity. On the eve of Chinese New Year itself, Chinatown will be abuzz with the Chinatown Chinese New Year Countdown Party. Held at the Kreta Ayer Square and open to all, live music performances and a spectacular display of fireworks will usher in the new year amidst a festive atmosphere.

☾ Chingay Parade

The Chingay Parade, one of Asia's largest street performance and float parade, marks the end of the Chinese New Year celebrations in Singapore. The event brings together a dazzling display of colourful floats and performances that celebrate the country's rich and unique multi-ethnic and cosmopolitan cultures. Every year, Chingay promises exciting highlights, huge intricate props and structures; cultural performances by local talents and international acts; and stunning pyrotechnics and firework displays. The People's Association (PA)—the local grassroots organisation which organises Chingay Parade—also brings the parade to some of Singapore's heartland neighbourhoods on subsequent weekends after the main parade. This year, Chingay Parade 2020 will be themed "Colours in Harmony" and celebrates different communities in Singapore. It will also be a milestone event to commemorate PA's 60th anniversary and the PA will present a segment titled "Bridge of Harmony". The segment will symbolise the efforts of the PA and the various communities in bringing people from different backgrounds together to work and live in harmony over the last six decades.

SEPTEMBER

Chinatown Mid-Autumn Festival Celebrations

Mid-Autumn Festival celebrates the bright harvest moon. Moon-viewing parties are held when the moon is at its fullest and brightest. The celebration often sees the retelling of lunar legends. One of the most notable is the story of Chang Er, the wife of a merciless king who downed the elixir of immortality he had intended to drink, so as to save her people from his tyrannical rule. She ascended to the moon upon her brave act and has been worshipped as a Moon Goddess by the Chinese ever since. Visitors can soak in the festivities in Chinatown (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p70), whose streets will be festooned with colourful lanterns. Pop by street-side stalls and enjoy a delicate brew of Chinese tea and sample mooncakes (sweet pastries traditionally eaten during the Mid-Autumn Festival), which are typically filled with lotus seed paste and a salted egg yolk. The daily celebrations at Chinatown during this period also include performances such as Chinese dance, opera, musical performances and acrobatics.

ARTS, MUSEUMS & HERITAGE

ArtScience Museum™

Since its opening in 2011, the ArtScience Museum™—with its eye-catching lotus-inspired design—has become an icon of the Singapore skyline. ArtScience Museum™ at Marina Bay Sands® is Southeast Asia's leading cultural institution that explores the interrelationship between art, science, technology and culture. Featuring 21 galleries totalling 6,000 sqm, the iconic lotus-inspired building has staged major exhibitions by some of the world's major artists, including Leonardo da Vinci, M.C. Escher, Salvador Dalí, Andy Warhol and Vincent Van Gogh, as well as exhibitions that explore aspects of science and technology—including particle physics, big data, robotics, palaeontology, marine biology and space science. It houses Singapore's largest permanent digital art gallery—Future World by Japanese art collective teamLab, an immersive world of art, science, magic and metaphor. Last year, its whimsical Wonderland exhibition was widely received for its playful installations, eye-catching props and amazing audiovisual artworks, that celebrates Lewis Carroll's timeless tale of Alice's adventures. The museum also runs regular programmes, workshops, tours and activities that are suitable for visitors of all ages.

Battlebox

Located inside Fort Canning Hill, the Battlebox was once a top-secret bunker that was built to be bombproof and self-sufficient. Constructed in 1936, it served as an underground command centre for British-led troops in Singapore during World War II. It was also inside the Battlebox that the British made the momentous decision on 15 February 1942 to surrender Singapore to the Japanese forces. Visitors can join The Battlebox Tour, which is held three to five times a day. Guides will take participants through the bunker's historical functions and the events that led to the fall of Malaya and Singapore to the Japanese. Entry to Battlebox is via guided tours only.

Chinatown Heritage Centre

Chinatown Heritage Centre is where visitors can trace the footsteps of Singapore's early pioneers and discover the personal stories of people who made Chinatown (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p70) their home. Housed in three adjacent restored shophouses along Pagoda Street, the Chinatown Heritage Centre is a museum that offers insights into the lives of early migrants from China, who left their villages and travelled to Singapore in hopes of a better life. Visitors can step into the shoes of these pioneers who settled in the Chinatown district and experience how they lived by exploring the authentic recreations of the cramped 'eight by eight' living quarters and a tailor shop that once existed in the area. Guided tours are conducted three times a day.

Former Ford Factory

Discover how Singapore survived the Japanese Occupation at the historic Former Ford Factory. Through three intertwining narratives on Japanese aggression, British defences and how civilians in Singapore were caught up in the larger forces of imperial struggle and war, the exhibition showcases fresh perspectives on the fall of Singapore. Visitors will have the unique experience of being able to walk into the boardroom where the surrender took place on 15 February 1942. Learn about acts of atrocity such as 'Sook Ching' where there was mass screening of Chinese men and those suspected of being anti-Japanese were mercilessly killed. Through the display of personal items of that time in history as well as oral interviews of eye witnesses, visitors will understand the harrowing experiences people went through and how they dealt with severe challenges. Join the walking tours led by experienced volunteer guides to discover more stories behind the rich collections on display. There are 20 places available daily (except for Public Holidays) for the walking tours. To further enhance the experience, visitors can download the Former Ford Factory mobile application from the Google Play Store or Apple App Store. Gillman Barracks

The history of Gillman Barracks is tied to the island's colonial past. It was built in 1936 for the British 1st Battalion and was named after General Sir Webb Gillman. During World War II, it was one of the final battle sites before Singapore fell into the hands of the Japanese troops. After the country's independence in 1965, the site became prime training ground for Singapore's national servicemen. Only in 2012 was the area transformed into an enclave of contemporary art. Visitors will find international galleries such as Mizuma Gallery (www.mizuma.sg) and Sullivan + Strumpf (www.sullivanstrumpf.com) alongside homegrown outfits like FOST Gallery (www.fostgallery.com) and Chan + Hori Contemporary (www.chanhori.com). There are also several dining options like Masons (www.masons.sg) for European cuisine and The Naked Finn (www.nakedfinn.com) for top quality seafood dishes. Galleries open past their usual hours during the Art After Dark event (www.gillmanbarracks.com/others/gillman-barracks/current), which features live music and pop-up food stalls.

Indian Heritage Centre

The four-storey Indian Heritage Centre fuses traditional and modern architectural elements. Inspired by the stepwells in India, the unique glass façade is a large mirror by day and turns transparent at night to reveal a 'glowing lantern' of the façade's colourful mural. The centre showcases Indian culture and history, and houses a permanent exhibition titled 'Indians in Singapore - Past & Present'. Through the displays and with the help of audio guides and augmented reality technology, visitors will discover connections between South Asia and Southeast Asia, and gain a better understanding of the Indian community in Singapore. The centre also provides venues ideal for conducting events, seminars and workshops. Grab a Little India Heritage Trail booklet from its Visitor Services Counter and embark on three specially curated thematic routes around the Little India neighbourhood (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p77) that features over 40 heritage sites. Istana Heritage Gallery

The Istana Heritage Gallery offers visitors the opportunity to learn about the history of the Istana (see Neighbourhood, Lifestyle Precincts, p86) and learn about the President's constitutional, ceremonial and community roles. It was officially opened in October 2016 by Singapore's former President Tony Tan, and its curated collection includes artefacts and State Gifts, as well as a replica of a signing-in table used during State Visits by foreign leaders. Also on display is a reference piece of the bust of Singapore's late first president, Encik Yusof Bin Ishak, whose portrait is featured on the country's currency notes. The gallery is located in Istana Park, which is across the road from the Istana, and can accommodate a maximum capacity of 45 pax. Admission is free, but an advance notice of two weeks is required for group visits. Visitors are to conduct themselves in a respectable and careful way in the gallery; selfie sticks and tripods are prohibited, and children below the age of 12 have to be accompanied by an adult at all times.

National Gallery Singapore

Located in the heart of the Civic District, National Gallery Singapore is a state-of-the-art facility that oversees the world's largest public collection of modern Southeast Asian art from the 19th century to the present. Housed in two of the nation's most historic monuments—the former Supreme Court and City Hall—the 64,000-sqm gallery is the biggest visual arts venue in the city. Visit the gallery for exhibitions that create dialogues between the art in Singapore, Southeast Asia and the world with the goal of fostering a creative and inclusive society. The gallery is also ideal

National Museum of Singapore

Fully constructed in 1887 and located within the Bras Basah Bugis neighbourhood (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p81), the National Museum is the country's oldest museum with a progressive mind. Its galleries adopt cutting-edge and multi-perspective ways of presenting history and culture to redefine the conventional museum experience. Visitors can immerse themselves in innovative festivals, events and exhibitions that detail national history and culture. A great starting point is the Singapore History Gallery, which maps the country's growth from 700 years ago to the modern city-state it is today. Visitors can also visit the Story of the Forest installation at the museum's Glass Rotunda, an immersive installation that transforms the 69 drawings from the William Farquhar Collection of Natural History Drawings into three-dimensional animations. Complimentary guided tours are held daily.

NATURE & PARKS

Bukit Timah Nature Reserve

Bukit Timah Nature Reserve is the second ASEAN Heritage Park here, after Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve (see p67), giving it recognition for its regional importance and conservation value. As one of the largest patches of primary forest in Singapore, it is home to a high percentage of Singapore's native fauna and flora, including thorny rattans, the Singapore freshwater crab and Sunda pangolin. The reserve is also where visitors can climb Singapore's tallest hill—which stands at 163 metres—and commemorate reaching its peak with a photograph by the iconic summit stone. Also not to be missed is the spectacular quarry views from the lookout point at the far end of the trail.

Central Catchment Nature Reserve and MacRitchie Reservoir Park

Known as a green lung in the centre of Singapore, the Central Catchment Nature Reserve is the island's largest reserve with more than 2,000 hectares of forest cover, supporting an extensive ecosystem of biodiversity. A popular attraction within the reserve is the Jelutong Tower, a seven-deck observation tower with unobstructed views of the forest. Visitors will also be near the Nee Soon Swamp Forest, a rare primary freshwater swamp forest. The nature reserve is also home to MacRitchie Reservoir Park, a good starting point for the 20-kilometre network of boardwalks and trails of varying difficulties and distances (from one and a half kilometres to six kilometres and beyond) that takes visitors through the forest and around the reservoir. It is worth trekking to the TreeTop Walk (Opening hours: Tue–Fri 9am–5pm; Sat–Sun & Public Holidays 8.30am–5pm), a 250-metre-long suspension bridge running between the two highest points in MacRitchie where visitors can enjoy expansive views of the forest canopy. Visitors are advised to hike towards the bridge by 4.45pm from the Ranger Station as the gate closes at 5pm. Water sports enthusiasts can choose to rent canoes and kayaks, and observe the beauty of nature from the glistening reservoir waters. The park has an amenities centre with lockers, showering facilities, drinking water points and food kiosks.

Coney Island

Formerly known as Serangoon Island, Coney Island was owned by the Haw Par brothers—the duo behind the famed Tiger Balm brand—back in the early 1900s. Today the island has retained its rustic charm and is a sanctuary for a diverse range of plant and animal species. Explore the coastal forests, mangroves and various plants and flowers, some of which are critically endangered. Bird watchers can look out for resident Baya Weavers, Oriental Magpie-robins and flocks of parakeets. A popular activity among visitors is to cycle along the 2.5-kilometre Coney Island Park Connector which offers a breath-taking view of the Serangoon Reservoir. To preserve the park's natural habitat, there is no electricity or piped water available on the island and visitors are advised to bring along a bottle of water.

Fort Canning Park

Set on a hilltop, Fort Canning Park is a respite from the surrounding urban landscape. The iconic 18-hectare park is steeped in history: Sir Stamford Raffles, the founder of modern Singapore, built a bungalow on Fort Canning Hill, and it became the home of subsequent colonial governors. Fort Canning Hill was a major communication centre, and key historic events took place here. Fort Gate, the remnant of a 19th century fortress, is also located in the park. Visitors will stumble upon these sites, as well as interesting flora and fauna on a self-guided 45-minute Colonial History Trail following storyboards and maps around the area. Visitors can also take a ticketed tour of the Battlebox, the British nerve centre for operations during World War II.

Fort Siloso

Fort Siloso was built in the late 19th century to protect Singapore from sea invasions. Today, it stands as a historical site with a wealth of World War II memorabilia including coastal guns and the remains of fortified military structures and tunnels. At the surrender chambers, visitors can take part in an immersive show. Light, sound and video effects will be used to bring visitors on a journey from the start of the Japanese invasion to the Japanese's surrender at the end of World War II. Fort Siloso also has a newly built Fort Siloso Skywalk, an 11-storey-tall and 181-metre-long treetop trail that visitors can stroll on to admire scenic views from. Gardens by the Bay

In the heart of this City in a Garden, the Gardens' conservatories are a tranquil oasis. The Flower Dome contains a diverse range of plants from the Mediterranean and semi-arid subtropical regions, as well as flower field displays that changes seasonally. The Cloud Forest conservatory is a popular spot for photographs—its cascading 35-metre-tall indoor waterfall is one of the world's largest. From there, visitors can embark on a biodiversity walk featuring plants from the tropical highlands, along with those that thrive in habitats of up to 2,000 metres above sea level. Its Outdoor Gardens, including the Supertree Grove, have free admission and are open till late. Visitors can get close to the gardens' iconic Supertree structures on the 22-metre-tall OCBC Skyway. Families with children should pack a change of clothes and swimwear to enjoy the Far East Organization Children's Garden, which has rainforest tree houses, an amphitheatre and a water play zone. Bicycles/tricycles, roller skates, skateboards and scooters are prohibited in the Gardens.

Rail Corridor

Rail Corridor

Rich in history, the Rail Corridor is testimony to Singapore's longstanding relationship with its neighbouring country, Malaysia. Trains used to shuttle cargo between both countries, via the Tanjong Pagar Railway Station and the Woodlands Train Checkpoint. Today, this 24-kilometre route—which connects vast stretches of greenery in Singapore—is also known as the green corridor and is frequently visited by sports enthusiasts like runners and hikers. Two distinct truss bridges found at Upper Bukit Timah Road near The Rail Mall (www.railmall.com.sg) are a popular backdrop for photographs amongst visitors. The mall has a number of dining and retail establishments, and makes a great stopover for lunch or afternoon tea break. Singapore's Urban Redevelopment Authority (URA), which manages the Rail Corridor, has a detailed walking map on its website (www.thegreencorridor.org/tag/rail-corridor-map) that visitors can consider.

Singapore Botanic Gardens UNESCO

The Singapore Botanic Gardens (SBG), with its 82 hectares of lush landscapes, photogenic pavilions and sculptural landmarks, is Singapore's first UNESCO heritage site. It is split into three main areas: the Tanglin Core, Central Core and Bukit Timah Core. The Tanglin Core—the oldest part of the gardens—includes a Botany Centre and the SBG Heritage Museum (Opening hours: Mon–Sun 9am–6pm), where visitors can learn about SBG's rich heritage. Located in the Central Core tourist belt are the Nassim Gate Visitor Centre and the popular National Orchid Garden, which carries more than 60,000 plants and orchids across 1,000 species. Besides exploring the park's open spaces, travellers can visit specialized gardens like the Ethnobotany Garden and the Centre for Ethnobotany. The garden features plants native to Southeast Asia, which are traditionally used for medicinal and craft purposes. Through interactive displays, artefacts and information panels at the centre, visitors will discover the roles plants have played in shaping the world we know today. Young visitors can cultivate a love for nature and the environment at the interactive play areas in Jacob Ballas Children's Garden. After exploring the gardens, visitors can opt for plenty of dining options in and around the area, including the one-Michelin-starred Corner House (see Eat & Drink, Celebrity Fine Dining, p119). Happening every weekend, visitors can sign up for free monthly tours led by experienced volunteer guides to discover the different themes around the gardens. For group bookings (more than 20 pax), contact them two weeks in advance for arrangement.

Singapore Zoo

Best Attraction Experience (2017)

Since its opening in 1973, the award-winning Singapore Zoo has established itself as a world-class wildlife park that houses more than 2,400 animals, many of which roam freely in naturalistic habitats. A popular programme for most visitors is the 'Jungle Breakfast with Wildlife', where they will get to dine with the adorable orang utan family. Thereafter, guests can see more of these charismatic apes at the world's first free-ranging orang utan habitat, where a raised boardwalk allows for almost-360-degree views of the creatures playing amongst the trees. The park's Fragile Forest zone and Elephants of Asia exhibits are great educational experiences for visitors of all ages, while Rainforest Kidzworld allows children to spend time with farmyard animals. Visitors can sign up for special behind-the-scenes tours like RepTopia tour where they can get up close with and even feed snakes, bearded dragons and other reptiles. Southern Islands

Singapore's offshore Southern Islands are made up of a total of eight islands. Full of undisturbed natural landscapes, three of these islands—Saint John's Island, Kusu Island and Sisters' Islands—are great for camping, picnicking, snorkelling and sightseeing. They are easily accessible by ferry from Marina South Pier; round trip tickets are at S$18 for adults and S$12 for children. Saint John's Island (www.nparks.gov.sg/gardens-parks-and-nature/parks-and-nature-reserves/sisters-islands-marine-park/st-johns-island-trail) was once a quarantine centre for infectious diseases and later a drug rehabilitation centre. It has since undergone transformation and is now known for many friendly felines, swimming lagoons, beaches, picnic grounds and trekking routes. Legend has it that Kusu Island was a result of a giant tortoise turning itself into an island in order to save two shipwrecked sailors who then returned to the island to give thanks. In a nod to its origins story, the island is also home to a famous tortoise sanctuary, which houses them in hundreds. Sisters' Islands are two islands separated by a narrow channel and is said to be named after varied versions of a folktale where two sisters drown at sea. The Sisters' Islands Marine Park (www.nparks.gov.sg/gardens-parks-and-nature/parks-and-nature-reserves/sisters-islands-marine-park) located on the island is home to plenty of Singapore's native marine biodiversity and is definitely worth a visit.

Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve

Singapore's first ASEAN Heritage Park, Sungei Buloh is home to rich biodiversity. There are numerous walking trails and wheelchair-accessible paths throughout the 202-hectare nature reserve, and visitors can discover its native inhabitants such as otters, crabs, water snakes and monitor lizards. Bird-watchers can take the Migratory Bird Trail that goes around the Buloh Tidal Ponds and admire resident birds like herons, kingfishers and sunbirds. Children will enjoy the Junior Adventure Trail—minutes from the Visitor Centre—where they can mirror the movements of a crab or mudskipper among the mangroves. Free guided walks (max 20 pax) are conducted in English by certified attendants on Saturday mornings. Registration is mandatory, so travellers should check out the website for more information on the activities. A ten-minute drive from Sungei Buloh is Kranji Marshes (www.nparks.gov.sg/gardens-parks-and-nature/parks-and-nature-reserves/kranji-marshes), which also supports a rich biodiversity of flora and fauna.

The Southern Ridges

Spread over ten kilometres of green and open spaces, a hike through The Southern Ridges takes visitors to five local parks, namely Mount Faber Park, Telok Blangah Hill Park, HortPark, Kent Ridge Park and the Labrador Nature Reserve, which are linked by park connectors. As part of the journey, travellers cross bridges through the Adinandra Belukar, a distinct secondary forest, and can observe a variety of bird species. Henderson Waves—a picturesque bridge with wave-like arcs—is another highlight of the walk. Set 36 metres above ground level, Singapore's highest pedestrian bridge is a marvel even at nightfall—it is illuminated with LED lighting from 7pm to 7am nightly. From many of the bridges and walkways, trekkers can enjoy panoramic views of lush greenery, as well as the sights and sounds of wildlife such as cicadas, straw-headed bulbuls, kingfishers and even migratory birds of prey. Go to the NParks website (www.nparks.gov.sg) for self-guided walking tours. For the suggested routes, the difficulty level is moderate to challenging, and the walking time is three to five hours.

LEGEND

NEW New in Singapore

There is plenty to see and do in Singapore's colourful neighbourhoods.

Buddha Tooth Relic Temple and Museum

A — 1

ETHNIC DISTRICTS: CHINATOWN

An ethnic district like no other, Chinatown is a melting pot of diverse cultures and traditions—an enclave of storied heritage mirroring the history of Singapore. Travellers will be able to witness different cultures blend in harmony, just like how the Sri Mariamman Temple (see p71) sits alongside Buddha Tooth Relic Temple and Museum (see p71) and where traditional boutiques exist side-by-side to hip new establishments. Uncover the neighbourhood's shopping gems that range from traditional wares to modern eco-conscious goods. Chinatown—which encompasses the Kreta Ayer, Bukit Pasoh, Keong Saik, Telok Ayer and Duxton Hill neighbourhoods—is also home to some of the best dining on the island, from hipster cafés to established hawker stalls and Michelin-starred restaurants (see Eat & Drink, Hawker Centres, p129 and Celebrity Fine Dining, p118 respectively). Wind down after a day of exploration at award-winning bars and hot supper spots (see Nightlife & Entertainment, p94 and Eat & Drink, Supper Spots, p134) and revel in the buzzing nightlife that will invigorate visitors late into the night.

NEIGHBOURHOODS

Singapore is made up of a myriad of diverse neighbourhoods travellers can explore and experience.

From well-known lifestyle precincts to quaint suburbs and ethnic enclaves, each neighbourhood has its own distinct character and points of interest. Singapore's vibrant ethnic districts celebrate and showcase the city-state's multicultural heritage, where Culture Shapers can immerse in the cultures of the main ethnic groups who call Singapore home: Chinese, Malay, Indian and Eurasian. Lifestyle precincts such as Bras Basah, Bugis (see Lifestyle Precincts, p81), Marina Bay (see Lifestyle Precincts, p84) and the Civic District offer thriving hubs of activities for everyone in the family.

Chinatown

Buddha Tooth Relic Temple and Museum

One of the major Buddhist temples in Singapore, this is a fine example of the Chinese Tang dynasty style of architecture in the heart of Chinatown (see p70). As its name suggests, the building houses a tooth relic of Buddha, as well as other revered artefacts. Built in 2007, visitors will marvel at the rich interiors comprising paintings, statues, tapestries and other exhibits related to Buddha and Buddhism. The building also has a roof garden and a vegetarian restaurant in the basement. Admission to the temple is free, and complimentary tours are conducted every Saturday.

Chinatown Food Street

Located on Smith Street in the heart of Chinatown, the Chinatown Food Street is a must-visit on the itinerary to have a taste of Singapore's hawker scene. With more than 20 hawker stalls, shophouse restaurants and pop-up kiosks, the street offers dishes that represent the main Chinese dialects, as well as the different races in Singapore. The high-ceiling glass shelter with an in-built cooling system allows for more comfortable and fuss-free alfresco dining. The area is open from 11am to 11pm daily. For more information, see Eat & Drink, Hawker Centres, p129.

Chinatown Food Street

Chinatown Street Art

While Chinatown is known for its cultural landmarks and conserved shophouses, visitors can also seek out the many murals that adorn the walls along the street. Mural artists such as Belinda Low, Ceno2, Didier Jaba Mathieu, Ripple Root, Tom Civil and Yip Yew Chong have filled the walls of the streets around co-sharing spaces with scenes from old Singapore and old crafts and trades. Each mural provides visitors with Instagram-worthy photo opportunities that will surely stand out on their social media feed. To fully appreciate artwork of local mural artist Yip Yew Chong, visitors can choose to embark on the Yip Yew Chong Street Art Trail by LocoMole (www.locomole.com/yyctrail/#gref).

Keong Saik and Bukit Pasoh

An urban enclave of world-class restaurants, hip bars and bustling creative hubs, Keong Saik and Bukit Pasoh attracts local artists, discerning gourmands and lifestyle enthusiasts alike. Visitors can enjoy bespoke cocktails at sophisticated speakeasies Gibson Bar and Ginza-style bar D.Bespoke (see Nightlife & Entertainment, Cocktail and Spirit Bars, p98 and p98 respectively) along Bukit Pasoh Road—both ranked in Asia's 50 Best Bars 2019. Old-school eats can also be found in the area such as Keong Saik Bakery (www.keongsaikbakery.oddle.me). The bakery fuses old-world charm with modern baking techniques to give rise to locally-inspired creations like Chendol Delight, a cake that fuses traditional chendol (traditional local dessert which includes shaved ice, green rice flour jelly, adzuki beans, coconut milk and palm sugar) ingredients with rich coconut custard. Travellers can also savour gourmet food at Michelin-recognised restaurants, hunt down whimsical street art and if they have not had their fill of the neighbourhood, spend a night in one of the boutique hotels nestled in conservation shophouses.

Pagoda Street

The name draws inspiration from Sri Mariamman Temple's (see p71), gopuram—the word for pagoda in Tamil—over the main gate of the temple. Jamae Mosque (www.masjidjamaechulia.sg), also known as Masjid Chulia, flanks Pagoda Street on the other side. Both places of worship are gazetted as national monuments.

Sri Mariamman Temple

With roots dating back to 1827, Singapore's oldest Hindu temple was formerly known as 'Mariamman Kovil' or 'Kling Street Temple'. It was later rebuilt as Sri Mariamman Temple, dedicated to goddess Mariamman, who is believed to be able to heal the sick. During the colonial period, it was a refuge for new immigrants, a dispute mediation venue and where marriage ceremonies were held for Hindus. Today, weddings are still held at the temple, and travellers who visit in October or November may get to observe the Theemithi (fire-walking ceremony) celebrations, which is the main festival observed here annually. Visitors can marvel at the temple's six-tiered gopuram, or grand tower entrance, decorated with sculptures in the image of Hindu deities and mythological creatures. The visual treat continues with the temple's elaborate interiors, featuring shrines with statues of different deities.

Telok Ayer Chinese Methodist Church

The church was founded in 1889 by Dr Benjamin West, a Methodist missionary and medical doctor who preached from a shophouse in Chinatown. He delivered sermons in Malay to a humble crowd of around 30 people. His sermons were then translated into Hokkien, a local dialect. Subsequently, a four-storey structure was built at Telok Ayer Street, and became the present-day church building. Reminiscent of its past, visitors will notice that the building is a unique blend of Western and Eastern influences. Familiar architectural touches like a pagoda roof and louvred doors and windows, typically seen in Southeast Asia, are said to have put the local Chinese community at ease. On its 100th anniversary in 1989, the church was gazetted as a national monument. English services are held on Sundays at 9am while Hokkien and Bahasa Indonesia services are held at 1.30pm.

Thian Hock Keng Temple

Built in 1840 with the support of prominent members of the Hokkien (Chinese dialect group) community, such as philanthropist Tan Tock Seng, Thian Hock Keng Temple is one of Singapore's oldest Chinese temples. Dedicated to Mazu, the Goddess of the Sea, devotees came here to give thanks and pray for safe passage across the sea. At the temple, visitors can keep an eye out for the detailed carvings and sculptures of dragons, phoenixes and deities, as well as the colourful porcelain on the roof ridges—a Fujianese decorating technique. Amazingly, not a single nail was used in the original construction of the temple, which is now a gazetted national monument and managed by the Singapore Hokkien Huay Kuan. Bookings for free guided tours covering the temple's history, architecture, customs and faith can be made three weeks in advance. ANA FONG

General Manager, Tong Heng

“Being young at heart is the key to keeping traditions alive and meaningful, so that younger people can relate to Tong Heng and desire to experience what we have to offer.”

As the 4th generation of the family, Ana Fong has been running Tong Heng with her aunts over the past eight years. She understands the importance of upholding brand heritage and values even as she strives to sustain the pioneer Cantonese bakery that dates back to 1935. The answer thus far is to keep to the roots of Tong Heng—to create pastries that bring happiness to customers—but to speak fluently in the today's language of social and visual engagement.

Geylang Serai

A — 2

ETHNIC DISTRICTS: GEYLANG SERAI

Once a trade emporium, and one of Singapore's oldest Malay settlements, Geylang Serai was where the natives of Singapore, Indonesia and Malaysia settled after the British dispersed the Malay settlements at the mouth of the Singapore River (see Lifestyle Precincts, p89) in the 1840s. In the early 1920s, more Malays moved into the area from Kampong Glam (see p74). Geylang Serai is derived from the Malay word kilang (meaning a press or a mill) and the fragrant serai or lemongrass, which the Malays grew in the area during the late 19th century.

One of the best times to visit the neighbourhood to experience Malay culture and heritage is during Ramadan, the Muslim fasting month, leading up to Hari Raya Aidilfitri (see Festivals & Events, p41), or the festival of Eid, which marks the end of Ramadan. During Ramadan, the streets of Geylang Serai are aglow with the annual street light-up. A huge pasar malam (night market) filled with stalls selling everything from traditional ethnic wear and home furnishings to a wide variety of Malay snacks entices people from all walks of life to gather and enjoy the festivities.

Geylang Serai Market and Food Centre

Located just a ten-minute drive from the city centre, the iconic Geylang Serai Market and Food Centre is the only halal wet market and food centre in Singapore. It is one of the best places to shop for ingredients for Malay and Indian cuisines. The ground floor, where the wet market is located, sells all sorts of day-to-day kitchen needs, including fresh produce and meat, and a variety of fabrics and decorative materials. The second-storey food court offers an extensive selection of dishes such as nasi lemak (rice cooked in coconut milk, served with an array of side dishes), beef rendang (braised meat cooked in coconut milk and spices), briyani (an Indian spiced rice dish with meat or vegetables) and goreng pisang (fried banana), among others. It is recommended to visit the food centre early in the day as more food stalls open for breakfast and lunch than for dinner. Wholesale shops open as early as 3am in the market as well.

Khadijah Mosque

Now gazetted for conservation by Singapore's Urban Redevelopment Authority (URA), this mosque was named after its principal benefactor, Madam Khadijah Binte Mohamed, who donated S$50,000 in 1915 to have it built. It was finally built in 1920, four years after she died. In 2003, a new auditorium building was added to the original structure—opened by then Prime Minister Goh Chok Tong—and the second level of this addition now houses the Religious Rehabilitation Group (RRG). Appointments can be arranged by phone for visitors who wish to visit the RRG gallery.

Paya Lebar Quarter NEW

A multi-faceted development, Paya Lebar Quarter is the key catalyst in transforming the Paya Lebar district into a dynamic lifestyle and sub-regional business hub. Its urban spaces bring together workplaces, retail offerings, entertainment options and exclusive residences. Located in between Changi Airport and the Central Business District (CBD), Paya Lebar Quarter's façade, interior and landscape are inspired by the Songket fabric, a traditional Malay brocade textile, unifying the buildings and public areas, and seamlessly weaving the four plots into a single tapestry. Its shopping mall houses over 200 shops and has indoor and experiential parkside alfresco dining set in a generous lush green space of 100,000 sqft. Visitors can check out social café concept kómma (www.facebook.com/kommasocialcafe), located on the first level of the Paya Lebar Quarter mall, where they can browse unique local designer products and participate in workshops led by local creatives.

ETHNIC DISTRICTS: KAMPONG GLAM

The word kampong means 'compound' in Malay, while glam is often attributed to the gelam tree (long-leaved paperbark tree), that grew in abundance in the area in early Singapore. The area is well known for two major landmarks: the impressive Sultan Mosque (see Ethnic Districts, p75) and the Istana Kampong Gelam (Glam), which used to be a sultan's palace but has now been restored as the Malay Heritage Centre (see Attractions, Arts, Museums & Heritage, p75). Once populated by Arab, Boyanese, Bugis and Javanese people, the area today is an eclectic blend of history, culture and a trendy lifestyle scene. Shopaholics should head to colourful Haji Lane for its quirky boutiques, hip bars and cafés or to Arab Street (see Ethnic Districts, p74) and Bussorah Street to pick up traditional wares. Kampong Glam truly comes alive during Ramadan (the Muslim fasting month) leading up to Hari Raya Aidilfitri (see Festivals & Events, p41) where a pasar malam (night market) near the Sultan Mosque lures locals and visitors with delicious Malay food.

Aliwal Arts Centre

Aliwal Arts Centre is a multidisciplinary arts centre with a strong focus on the performing arts. Since 2014, it has hosted the Aliwal Urban Art Festival (see Festivals & Events, p37)—an annual celebration of street culture featuring graffiti and graphic art, breakdancing, skateboarding and music—and the Aliwal Arts Night Crawl, a festival promoting the eclectic mix of traditional and contemporary artists based at the centre. It often hosts arts and music performances and events such as pop-up flea markets. Members of the public can sign up for workshops such as introduction to DJ-ing and salsa dance classes. Pre-registration for workshops is required; enrolment requirements vary depending on individual workshops.

Arab Street

Flanked by Victoria Street and Beach Road, Arab Street is home to trendy hangouts and shops selling brightly coloured fabrics and textiles, basketry, hand-knotted Persian rugs, aromatic Arab teas, as well as other traditional wares such as Persian carpets, kebaya dresses (a traditional blouse-dress incorporating Malay and Chinese motifs) and handmade perfumes (see Shopping, Cultural & Lifestyle, p145). The area also has many halal eateries featuring Malay and Middle Eastern cuisines (see Eat & Drink, Halal Restaurants, p122). Visitors can also stop by Bajupura (www.bajupura.com) to rent kebayas and walk around the area to take Instagrammable photos in front of art murals and colourful architecture.

Gelam Gallery NEW

Located along two Muscat Streets, Gelam Gallery was birthed through the transformation of a dirty bin storage area to a cool outdoor art gallery for both locals and tourists. The gallery features artworks of an eclectic international mix of artists from Singapore, Malaysia, China, Myanmar, France and UK. The artists range from professionals to graduates from LASALLE College of the Arts, Nanyang Academy of Fine Arts and also some self-taught artists from various professional backgrounds. The art pieces range from contemporary art to art pieces that reflect the culture and heritage of the district as well as the artists' reflection on the present, past and future.

Haji Lane

A short ten-minute walk from Bugis MRT station will bring visitors to the vibrant streets of Haji Lane. The area is lined with multi-label stores, quirky boutiques as well as hip bars and cafes. Another draw to Haji Lane is the collection of street art murals in vibrant hues of blues, yellows, greens and reds that adorn the facades of bars and stores along the street. These works were created by local and international names such as Didier Jaba Mathieu, Sheryo x The Yok and Oak. Visitors will be able to admire these artworks as they explore Haji Lane and use them as a backdrop for Instagram-worthy photographs. Haji Lane is also home to an exciting bar scene. Visit Going Om (www.going-om.com.sg) to enjoy live music and a variety of drinks including vodka, gin, wine and beer as well as mains, bar grubs and even desserts.

Kandahar Street

Along this stretch are some of the most beautifully-restored shophouses. The street is also known for restaurants serving nasi padang (steamed rice served with various pre-cooked dishes) and the Rich and Good Cake Shop (www.facebook.com/richandgoodcakeshop), an old-school bakery famous for its Swiss rolls that come in local flavours like kaya (a traditional jam made from coconut and eggs), durian (a spiky tropical fruit that is unique to Southeast Asia) and mango.

Malay Heritage Centre

The Malay Heritage Centre is a must-visit for visitors who are keen to learn about the rich heritage and culture of Singapore's Malay community. Formerly the royal residence of Malay sultans in Singapore, the museum houses exhibitions and a diverse collection of artefacts from the National Collection and the Malay community. In 2015, the museum was gazetted as a National Monument. Groups of 20 and above will enjoy 20% off the museum's entrance fee. For more information, see Attractions, History & Heritage, p55.

Sultan Mosque

The iconic Sultan Mosque, built in 1824, is a landmark of the Kampong Glam district (see p74), which attracts many who are keen to discover the culture and history of Malays, one of Singapore's main ethnic groups. Also known as Masjid Sultan, the mosque's name pays homage to Sultan Hussein Mohamed Shah, the first Sultan of Singapore and 18th ruler of Johor. In 1975, it was gazetted as a national monument. The mosque's mass prayer hall can host up to 5,000 visitors. While its two giant golden domes make for an impressive sight, their bases are adorned with glass bottle ends, which were donated by poor Muslims during its construction, so that all Muslims, not just the rich, could contribute. Guided tours are given by multilingual docents in English, Malay, Japanese and Chinese, among other languages. Visitors can write in two months in advance to arrange for a more specific and detailed tour than a walk-in visit. Tours are subject to availability of the presenter on the group's chosen day and will range from 30 minutes to an hour.

ETHNIC DISTRICTS: KATONG & JOO CHIAT

The residential neighbourhoods of Katong and Joo Chiat are known for their rich Peranakan heritage and culture. This area traces its roots to the early 19th century, when wealthy English, Portuguese, French and Chinese settlers established coconut, cotton and gambier plantations here. In the early 20th century, many locals started building homes in the eastern region, which resulted in the varied styles of bungalows, shophouses and places of worship in the area. Now, the area is a must-visit for its cool cafés, indie retail shops and famous local delicacies such as Katong laksa (spicy coconut milk-based noodle soup; see Eat & Drink, Local Favourites, p108), Devil's Curry (spicy Eurasian curry flavoured with candlenuts and vinegar) and nonya cakes (nonya is a term for Peranakan women). It is also home to many homegrown businesses like Kim Choo Kueh Chang and Kway Guan Huat Joo Chiat Popiah. Visitors and locals alike enjoy taking photos of and with the many restored heritage buildings in the area. Visitors can opt to book a walking or food tour of these areas (see Tours, p158).

Church of the Holy Family

Built before World War II, this church was the first Roman Catholic Church built along the eastern coastline of Singapore and is a gathering place for the Eurasian residents in the area, serving the local Catholic community till today. Affectionately known as the 'Katong Church' or 'Katong Catholic Church' by older generations, the building went through a major renovation in 1999—the front sculptures have been kept from the original church structure, while a 16-panel stained glass was imported from Italy and installed at the back of the new building. This is the only Catholic church in Singapore that celebrates Peranakan (Straits-born people of Chinese and Malay/Indonesian heritage) masses on the eve of Chinese New Year (see Festivals & Events, p38).

Former Joo Chiat Police Station

Joo Chiat Police Station was built in 1928 to serve the needs of the community, and the building was gazetted for conservation in 1993. Today, Katong Square (www.katongsquare.com.sg)—a lifestyle and retail space—is located in the conserved building. Next door, the Holiday Inn Express Singapore Katong also retains the Peranakan (Straits-born people of Chinese and Malay/Indonesian heritage) charm of the neighbourhood.

Kway Guan Huat Joo Chiat Popiah NEW

An 82-year-old establishment extremely popular for its handmade popiah (fresh spring roll with vegetables and assorted filling) skins, Kway Guan Joo Chiat Popiah has just undergone a major renovation and reopened as a new four-storey building with brand new offerings for patrons. Alongside their usual takeaway shop is a new dine-in restaurant on the ground floor. Visitors can look forward to live popiah skin making demonstrations, while digging into dishes centred around a popiah theme such as Popiah Appetiser, DIY popiah set and varying desserts made using popiah skins. On the second floor, visitors can explore the new Popiah Heritage centre to learn the history behind the classic local dish and the shop and take part in workshops.

Kim Choo Kueh Chang

Founded by Madam Lee Kim Choo since 1945, Kim Choo Kueh Chang's nonya (Peranakan (Straits-born people of Chinese and Malay/Indonesian heritage) term for women) rice dumplings and kuehs (bite-sized snacks or desserts) have since become a favourite amongst locals and visitors alike. At Kim Choo Kueh Chang's East Coast Road outlet, visitors will not only get to savour popular nonya snacks but they can also learn the art of wrapping nonya dumplings and kebaya (a traditional blouse-dress incorporating Malay and Chinese motifs) dressing at organised demonstrations. The brand-new Singapore Visitor Centre can also be found here, where travellers can drop by for maps, tickets and more. They can also enrich themselves in the culture and heritage of the district at the Katong Joo Chiat Gallery and take part in workshop experiences.

Rumah Bebe

For a dose of Peranakan (Straits-born people of Chinese and Malay/Indonesian heritage) culture, visitors can head to the 90-year-old shop—built in 1928 and restored in 2003—which serves as a true testament to authentic Peranakan heritage and architecture. Rumah Bebe showcases the ethnic group's exquisite embroidery, beadwork, jewellery, textiles and kebayas (a traditional blouse dress incorporating Malay and Chinese motifs). Private in-house tours (min 2 pax, max 20 pax) can be booked in advance. Visitors can also try Peranakan delicacies such as rice with buah keluak (black nut indigenous to Southeast Asia) and traditional pineapple tarts handmade at its on-site café-bake shop. It also organises workshops to make beaded keychains, beaded pendants, beaded brooches, porcelain spoons and painted tiles. Workshops where participants can bead their own shoes to bring home are also available. Originally meant for two sessions, Rumah Bebe is able to cater to travellers' time constraints for the shoe beading workshops.

Sri Senpaga Vinayagar Temple

Dedicated to the Elephant God, Ganesha or Lord Vinayagar, this temple—established by the Ceylonese Tamils from Sri Lanka—dates back to the 1850s and is the second-oldest Hindu temple in Singapore. Aside from its 21-metre-high rajagopuram (an ornate tower at the entrance of a temple), making it one of the tallest Indian temples in Singapore, Sri Senpaga Vinayagar is remarkable for its unique features such as the over 1.5-metre-tall statue of Lord Vinayagar, the gold-covered vimanam (cupola) and four main granite pillars with the Elephant God's 32 forms.

ART MURALS THAT TELL A STORY

On the facade of Kim Choo Kueh Chang's building, right next to Rumah Bebe, visitors can find the illustrative 'An Introduction to Peranakan Culture' art mural, among many others in the district.

ETHNIC DISTRICTS: LITTLE INDIA

One of the most vibrant and charismatic ethnic districts in Singapore, Little India attracts visitors with its sheer exuberance of life on the streets. Here, with the air smelling of spices, incense and jasmine, it is not uncommon to see Indian women in their colourful saris (traditional Indian womenswear) browsing through boutiques. Gaily painted shophouses along Serangoon Road (see p79) and side streets add to the district's charm. A mix of old Singapore and new, Little India's trendy cafés, restaurants and shops, designer boutique hotels and hip backpacker hostels exist side by side with goldsmiths and traditional Indian restaurants. Picturesque on regular days, the neighbourhood is at its vibrant best during festivals such as Pongal (celebrating the harvest; see Festivals & Events p37) and Deepavali (Festival of Lights; see Festivals & Events p44). Visitors can sign up for a variety of tours in the area (see Tours, p158).

Abdul Gafoor Mosque

The Abdul Gafoor Mosque was built in 1910 to serve the religious needs of South-Indian Muslim merchants and syces who were settling down in Little India at that time. Its unusual symmetry and incorporation of Indian, Arabian and European influences in its architecture sets it apart from other mosques and it was gazetted as a National Monument in 1979. Inside, visitors will find stained glass and Arabic calligraphy adorning its walls. In 2000, the mosque underwent various reconstructions to strengthen its foundations and converted its basement to support an air-conditioned prayer hall. It has since reopened and now accommodates up to 3,000 worshippers.

Art Murals around Little India

Little India has many cultural sights to behold but it is also peppered with stunning art murals that bring an artistic flair to the district. Many of the murals depict cultural symbolism specific to Little India. Some of them tell tales of the social and economic landscapes of the past and present as well. Singaporean artists like Eunice Lim, SONG, Shah Rizzal, TraseOne, street artist ZERO, Yip Yew Chong and well-known visual artist Speak Cryptic have also had a hand in adorning the neighbourhood's facades with their work. Look out for 'Kathaka'—the work of acclaimed Colombian graffiti artist, Didier Jaba Mathieu. Travellers meandering through the streets of Little India will be able to uncover these picture-perfect gems. Visitors seeking out these murals can download a walking trail guide from www.artwalklittleindia.sg/walking-trail-guide

TraseOne

Street artist

“There is a story to every wall that is built. My job as a street artist is to uncover those stories.”

TraseOne is highly regarded as one of the leading pioneers who is always pushing boundaries in the scene since 1999. What started as an adolescent hobby of just scrawling his name on the streets, Trase has evolved his approach in making art to create a more intellectual dialog of his work—most of which contain cleverly embedded subliminal messages. His work has won many awards in projects and exhibitions on the local and global platform.

Indian Heritage Centre

Visitors can rekindle their passion for history, art and culture at the Indian Heritage Centre, the first museum in Southeast Asia to focus on the diverse heritage of the Indian diaspora. This four-storey architectural gem is home to a range of permanent and temporary art exhibits from around South Asia. From religious sculptures to South Asian artwork, visitors are certain to be inspired by the passionate culture and beautiful art of Singapore's Indian community. Come nightfall, the building's translucent façade transforms into a flamboyant tapestry. Visitors can check out Indian Heritage Centre's website for details on periodic special exhibitions. Serangoon Road

Dating from 1822, this is the backbone of Little India and is one of Singapore's oldest roads. The road is packed with restaurants and shops selling everything from gold jewellery and trinkets to traditional Indian clothing, incense and spices. Visitors who want affordable, but good Indian curry should try vegetarian restaurant Komala Vilas (see Eat & Drink, Vegetarian, p132).

Sri Srinivasa Perumal Temple

Sri Srinivasa Perumal Temple is one of Singapore's oldest temples, dedicated to the Hindu deity, Sri Perumal, otherwise known as Lord Vishnu. While the structure of the temple standing today was built in the 1960s, the temple's history dates back to the 1800s. The temple constructed in 1885 was called the Narasinga Perumal Temple, but was later rebuilt and reinstated as the Sri Srinivasa Perumal Temple. Since then, it has been declared a National Monument and has undergone various

THE JALAN BESAR ENCLAVE

Parallel to Serangoon Road, Jalan Besar is one of the oldest roads in Singapore. In recent years, Jalan Besar and the streets around it have become a hip enclave with a growing number of trendy boutiques, cafés and restaurants. Coffee lovers can check out Chye Seng Huat Hardware (www.cshhcoffee.com), while foodies will love the baked goodies at The Butter Studio (www.thebutterstudio.com). Crafters and hobbyists will find much to occupy them at The Refinery (www.therefinery.sg), which houses a yakitori (grilled meat on skewers) restaurant on the first floor, a bespoke cocktail bar on the second floor and a craft workshop on the third floor.

Sri Veeramakaliamman Temple

Towards the middle of Serangoon Road (see p79) stands this imposing temple dedicated to Kali, Hindu goddess and destroyer of evil. The temple was established in 1855, making it one of Singapore's oldest houses of worship. Built by the Indian pioneers who came to live and work here, this Hindu temple was the first in the Serangoon area. Visitors are welcome to witness the pooja (daily prayer ceremony). Photography is allowed, though visitors must bear in mind that this is a place of worship, so basic respect and care is necessary so as not to disturb worshippers.

HEARTLANDS

Visitors who wish to experience the local way of life should explore the 'heartlands'—the suburbs outside the city centre and Central Business District (CBD)—where most locals live and work. Singapore's heartlands came about with the push to provide Singaporeans with mass housing in the late 1960s. Along with flats, the Housing & Development Board (HDB) also built a community infrastructure—from hawkker centres that housed once-itinerant street food sellers to minimarts, community hospitals and other amenities. The idea was that each HDB town would be self-sufficient, and these neighbourhoods soon developed distinct characteristics of their own.

Ang Mo Kio & Bishan

These two towns are next to each other and as such, share an almost similar history. Once a rubber plantation, Ang Mo Kio started out as a hub for car repair shops in the 1970s and soon grew into a well-planned housing estate that won the Singapore Institute of Architects' Outstanding Buildings Award in 1983. Ang Mo Kio Town Centre in Ang Mo Kio Avenue 3 is the town's main commercial and community hub. In April 2019, the town centre was given a new lease of life with several photo-worthy 3D art murals in different locations. Like Ang Mo Kio, Bishan is a peaceful yet buzzing town in central Singapore. Located on the site of a former Chinese cemetery, Bishan usually refers to Bishan New Town, a self-contained estate built in the mid-1980s to 1990s. Besides a town centre, Bishan has schools, public parks and communal facilities.

Bedok

A housing estate in the eastern part of Singapore, Bedok was once a quiet fishing village. The town takes its name from 'bedoh', the Malay word for drum, which was used at the mosque in the area. Like most of Singapore's East Coast, Bedok in the old days was a vibrant coastal town popular with locals for relaxing weekends and short getaways. The area now has extensive public housing, including Bedok North, Bedok South, Kaki Bukit, Bedok Reservoir and Kembangan. Condominiums have also sprouted in the area in recent years. Bedok's past as a fishing village and seaside retreat may be long gone, but this particular heartland still has a relaxed, charming vibe—perhaps because of its eclectic mix of hip cafés, quirky restaurants and old-school family-run shops.

Nearest MRT: Bedok Station / Kembangan Station

Jurong

Shortly after independence in 1965, Singapore was in a crisis with a growing population and no viable means of supporting itself. The solution: leverage the country's biggest resource—its people—to drive the budding manufacturing sector. But where to build these factories? The answer lay in utilizing the vast areas in the western part of Singapore. Today, Jurong is a thriving town with recreational and lifestyle facilities, green spaces and commercial establishments. While it has shaken off its 'industrial town' image, its manufacturing district continues to grow and is an essential part of the 'new Central Business District'.

Nearest MRT: Boon Lay Station / Chinese Garden Station / Jurong East Station / Lakeside Station

Tampines

Spread over 20.89 sqkm, Tampines is one of Singapore's largest residential areas. It got its name from the large number of ironwood, or 'tempinis' in Malay, in the area. There are only a few tempinis left today, and even less evidence of Tampines' past as a fishing village with sand quarries, orchards and coconut plantations. Developed in 1979, Tampines was the first town in Singapore under the precinct concept, which helped promote neighbourliness and a sense of belonging among residents. A drive around the neighbourhood will reveal colourful blocks of Housing & Development Board (HDB) flats, a smart design that earned Tampines New Town the United Nations World Habitat Award for Excellence in Housing Design in 1992. The suburban neighbourhood boasts of a golden trio of retail therapy: Century Square, Tampines 1 and Tampines Mall. These malls offer over 400 shops and boutiques, which will surely be able to satisfy the avid shopper.

Toa Payoh

Toa Payoh has the distinction of being the first town designed and developed entirely by the Housing & Development Board (HDB). This is the quintessential modern Singapore town and boasts a list of firsts, such as the first Residents' Association, neighbourhood police post, cooperative supermarket and MRT station, among others. The town gets its name from 'toa' (Hokkien and Teochew for 'big') and 'payoh' (derived from the Malay word for swamp, 'paya'). Its literal name, Big Swamp, is a tribute to the hard work and vision of its early settlers—plantation owners and workers in the 19th century who cleared swathes of swampland to settle here. Later on, kampongs ('village' in Malay) sprouted up in the area before finally evolving into the town visitors see today.

Nearest MRT: Braddell Station / Caldecott Station / Toa Payoh Station

Yishun & Sembawang

The once-rural Yishun and Sembawang areas were home to gambier and pepper plantations in the 1800s, before rubber and pineapple plantations took over in the early 1900s. It was finally urbanised in the mid-1970s with the inception of Yishun New Town, which was completed a decade later. Milestones such as the opening of Yishun MRT station, Yishun 10 (Asia's first cineplex with ten movie theatres), and Yishun's first shopping mall Northpoint, now upgraded and renamed Northpoint City, added vibrancy to the neighbourhood.

Nearest MRT: Khatib Station / Sembawang Station / Yishun Station / Canberra Station

LIFESTYLE PRECINCTS: BRAS BASAH. BUGIS

Straddling Singapore's Civic District and Kampong Glam (see Ethnic Districts, p74), the Bugis district was named after the Buginese people, seafarers from South Sulawesi in Indonesia, who settled in the area in the early 19th century before the British arrived. Now, the bustling Bras Basah Bugis neighbourhood is a historical haven and the city's nucleus of arts and culture, boasting a large concentration of notable museums, including the iconic National Museum of Singapore (see Attractions, Arts, Museums & Heritage, p56). The precinct's strategic location within the Central Business District (CBD) means there are dining, shopping and entertainment options aplenty, often housed in converted conservation buildings and heritage shophouses to lend nostalgic charm to modern restaurants and retail destinations.

Armenian Church

Built in 1835, the Armenian Church is Singapore's oldest Christian church and is dedicated to St. Gregory the Illuminator, the first Armenian monk. In 1973, the building was gazetted as a national monument and restored two decades later. Renowned Irish architect George D. Coleman included a dome roof and bell turret in its original design, but these were subsequently removed for safety reasons. Today, the building has a pitched roof and spire. Still, visitors may recognise the church's traditional interior—its vaulted ceiling, cupola and porticoes—as features central to what is regarded as a Coleman masterpiece. Visitors should leave time for a stroll through the serene Memorial Garden, where a commemorative tombstone of Agnes Joaquim stands. She crossbred the iconic Vanda 'Miss Joaquim' orchid, Singapore's national flower.

Bugis Street

Said to contain more than 600 shops and stalls across three levels peddling clothes, local street food and beauty services, this vibrant shopping destination immerses visitors in the lively atmosphere of a bustling pasar malam (night market) within a covered marketplace. The street itself was once a hotbed for transvestites and gawking sailors, but it is now teeming with local youths and bargain-hunters shopping for affordable fashion, accessories and trinkets. The two upper storeys are fully air-conditioned. Tourists who are referred to Bugis Street by officially appointed tour operators will receive a free tourist goodie bag from the Bugis Street Management.

Cathedral of the Good Shepherd

Located in central downtown of Singapore, this Roman Catholic Church is the oldest in Singapore and is the seat of the current archbishop. Built in 1847, it was closed in 2013 to undergo a major restoration and reopened in November 2016. Architecture buffs will love its neo-classical look, complete with matching wooden pews, stained glass panels and 14 paintings of the Stations of the Cross. It also houses Singapore's oldest working pipe organ, a restored Bevington and Sons organ from 1912. Interred in the church are the remains of Singapore's first two archbishops, Michel Olçomendy and Gregory Yong, and a crypt located in the cathedral's basement will house the remains of other bishops. The cathedral was gazetted as a national monument in 1973. There are free heritage tours of the Cathedral on the fourth Sunday of every month at 10.30am and 7.30pm. CHIJMES

This 19th-century complex, gazetted as a National Monument in 1990, began life in Caldwell House as the Convent of the Holy Infant Jesus, from which it derived its name. It then became a Catholic girls' school, adding a magnificent Gothic chapel featuring intricate plasterwork, stunning archways and Belgian stained glass windows. In 1996, after extensive restoration work, the CHIJMES complex was reopened as a converted enclave of restaurants, wine bars and sports pubs. The chapel, now named CHIJMES Hall, is a popular venue for weddings and events.

After the original chapel on the site of the present building was destroyed by two lightning strikes in 1852, it was torn down. In its place, a cathedral with early English Gothic influences was built. Designed by Colonel Ronald MacPherson in 1856, St Andrew's Cathedral is Singapore's largest cathedral and the most established Anglican place of worship. Located in the bustling Civic District, where modern Singapore began, its design pays fitting tribute to key historical figures. Stained glass windows on the apse honour Singapore's founder, Sir Stamford Raffles, and other British officials. In 1942 during World War II, there were frequent Japanese air raids and the cathedral was used as an emergency hospital. It was gazetted as a national monument in 1973. Free guided tours are available for advance booking on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 10.30am to 3pm and on Thursday at 3pm. Merlion Park

The Merlion Park is where visitors can admire Singapore's iconic Merlion—a must-see for tourists visiting the island. The water-spouting Merlion has a body of a fish, symbolising Singapore's humble beginnings as a fishing village, while its lion head symbolises Singapore's original name, Singapura, or 'lion city' in Malay. It was built by local craftsman, Lim Nang Seng, and was unveiled on 15 September 1972 by then Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew at the mouth of the Singapore River, to welcome all visitors to Singapore. A smaller Merlion statue can also be found in the park. Both statues are the most well-known among the seven approved Merlion statues in Singapore. Visitors can then take a stroll along the Esplanade Bridge to another icon of Singapore, Esplanade – Theatres on the Bay (see p84).

LIFESTYLE PRECINCTS: ORCHARD ROAD

Arguably Asia's most famous shopping street, this 2.2-kilometre-long stretch of sprawling malls (see Shopping, Malls, p140) is a hub of retail therapy, gastronomic indulgence and exciting entertainment—a far cry from its humble origins as a lane of nutmeg, pepper and fruit orchards that gave it its name. When people began moving into the district in the 1850s, the street became lined with outdoor hawker centres, wet markets, temples and cemeteries. In 1903, shops started to spring up—including Singapore's first supermarket, where The Centrepoint (www.thecentrepoint.com.sg) currently stands—and the boulevard's reputation as a shopping destination continued to grow. Today, Orchard Road is not only a paradise for shoppers seeking the latest fashion and technology; it is the island's central gathering spot, home to an ever-growing assortment of restaurants, bars, events and entertainment for all ages.

LIFESTYLE PRECINCTS: PUNGGOL

Situated in the north-eastern part of Singapore, Punggol is known for the idyllic beauty of its natural spaces—think lalang (coarse cogon grass) fields and wetland reserves. It is one of the country's oldest inhabited areas with a storied past that precedes the 1819 founding of the nation by Sir Thomas Stamford Raffles. Its earliest settlers were Malay fishermen; when the first Chinese immigrants arrived, they took up pig and poultry farming and worked in rubber plantations. In the 1970s, the pig farms were relocated, and reclamation efforts were carried out in the 1980s to cater to public housing. Today, Punggol is an emerging district coming into its own, as Singapore's Housing & Development Board (HDB) has earmarked it as the nation's first sustainable waterfront town of the 21st century.

Punggol Waterway Park/ Waterway Point

Hailed as the Venice of Punggol and winding through Punggol Town, this is Singapore's longest man-made waterway at 4.2 kilometres. Visitors can survey more than 22 mangrove varieties, go cycling or inline skating, and watch the sunset at several vantage points, including Jewel Bridge and Sunset Strip.

Along the breezy waterbed, Waterway Point is a shopping mall that caters to the entire family. Adults will find a variety of shopping and dining options, while children will gravitate to the massive play zones on level 2, such as Happy Park, a wet and dry outdoor playground with slides, and the experiential indoor Kids' Wonderland, where they can play among fairy-tale characters.

LIFESTYLE PRECINCTS: SENTOSA & HARBOURFRONT

Where the Singapore mainland ends to the south, a whole lot of fun begins. HarbourFront boasts the green heights of Faber Peak Singapore and the big labels and quirky shops of VivoCity (see Shopping, Malls, p144). The Singapore Cable Car Sky Network takes visitors on a beautiful aerial ride to Sentosa Island—which can also be reached by car, bus, the Sentosa Boardwalk or the Sentosa Express monorail. There, visitors will find plenty of attractions to arouse their senses and imagination: peaceful white sand beaches, marinas and trails, the championship-ready courses of Sentosa Golf Club (www.sentosagolf.com), theme and water parks, various courses and structures designed for sports lovers and adrenaline junkies, and countless dining options. Within Sentosa, travellers can get around via the free monorail, shuttle bus and beach tram. Bicycles are also available for rent, allowing cycling enthusiasts to enjoy the scenic sites of the island via three interconnected tracks.

Faber Peak Singapore/ Singapore Cable Car Sky Network

Formerly known as The Jewel Box, this vibrant cluster of dining and entertainment is situated 100 metres above sea level and away from the hustle and bustle of the city. With verdant views of the HarbourFront precinct, the city skyline and the Southern Islands (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p66), visitors can take in the picturesque surrounds over a meal at Arbora (www.onefabergroup.com/arbora) or Dusk Restaurant & Bar (www.onefabergroup.com/dusk), then walk on the wooden walkways of Henderson Waves or view Faber Point's carved murals, which depict key moments of Singapore's history.

For a truly scenic experience, visitors should ride the Singapore Cable Car Sky Network, which takes visitors over green wilderness, sand and sea, from Faber Peak Singapore and across the harbor to Sentosa. For set-dining options, which include Cable Car Sky Pass combos, visitors can check out Singapore Flavours Cabin. On Singapore Flavours Cabin, visitors can dine with their family and friends with a maximum of four persons per cabin. They will be served local favourites such as chicken rice and wok-fried chilli crab (see Eat & Drink, Local Favourites, p107) meat. Group packages are available.

LIFESTYLE PRECINCTS: SINGAPORE RIVER

For more than a century, the Singapore River was the island's centre of trade and commerce. Today, the areas that straddle it are bustling nightlife and dining hubs known as the Quays. Closest to the mouth of the river on the southern bank is Boat Quay, followed by Clarke Quay upriver on the northern bank, and Robertson Quay stretching along the same bank even further upstream. While the waterfront warehouses and godowns that once stored cargo brought in by bumboats have been refurbished into trendy restaurants, nightclubs and drinking dens, the colonial façades and colourful five-foot-way shophouses remain charming reminders of Singapore's historical past.

Alkaff Bridge

Built in 1997 in the shape of a tongkang—a light boat that shipped goods along the river—this 55-metre-long pedestrian bridge was named after a prominent family who lived in Singapore in the early 20th century. It is also known as the Singapore Art Bridge, and it is easy to see why—in 2004, Filipino artist Pacita Abad painted it with whimsical patterns using 55 colours.

HongKong Street

HongKong Street is a one-way road and it is named after the vibrant city of Hong Kong. The street boasts a high concentration of hidden dining and drinking gems like hip café Ronin (ronin.sg). Most famous, though, is 28 HongKong Street (see Nightlife & Entertainment, Cocktail and Spirit Bars, p97), the nine-year-old speakeasy that spearheaded Singapore's cocktail revolution and is consistently recognised as one of Asia's best bars.

Address: Hongkong Street (between New Bridge Road & South Bridge Road)

Mohamed Sultan Road

The shophouses that line this road were once used as warehouses to store goods taken from harbouring ships for redistribution, as well as homes for local residents during pre-war Singapore. In the early 1990s, they were rejuvenated as clubs and pubs, transforming the area into a nightlife hub. Today, the shophouses are mostly occupied by restaurants and design retailers.

KEN KOH

Business Development Director,
Nanyang Sauce

“My mission is to build on my Grandfather's legacy and brew the best Soy Sauce in the world, made with love, right here in Singapore!”

3rd generation owner of Nanyang Sauce, Ken Koh is well acquainted with the craft of soya sauce production, having spent childhood days working in the family business. Up till today, the soya sauce is still made traditionally, the same way Ken's late grandfather, the founder of Nanyang Sauce, did it. Non-genetically modified soya beans are steamed before they are placed into large clay vats with salt water and wheat flour to ferment under the sun for nine months.

Old Hill Street Police Station

Old Hill Street Police Station

Instantly recognisable for its 927 windows in rainbow hues, the Old Hill Street Police Station is currently home to the Ministry of Communications and Information and the Ministry of Culture, Community and Youth, as well as art galleries. LIFESTYLE PRECINCTS: TIONG BAHRU

It may be one of the oldest housing estates in Singapore, but this once-sleepy residential district is now a cultural hotbed for the island's young and hip. Built in the 1930s, the neighbourhood has a look that sets it apart: low-rise buildings in the Streamline Moderne architectural style, characterised by smooth curving forms and horizontal lines. Amidst this throwback architecture lies the district's modern appeal, distinctively blending old and new Singapore: pre-war apartments with Art Deco façades now house quirky fashion boutiques, while decades-old kopitiams (local coffeeshops) rub shoulders with trendy cocktail bars and cool cafés. Travellers can experience Singapore's famous hawker culture at Tiong Bahru Market and Food Centre (see Eat & Drink, Hawker Centres, p131). With its unique heritage-meets-hipster vibe, Tiong Bahru is a neighbourhood worth exploring on foot.

Nearest MRT: Tiong Bahru Station

Block 78 Moh Guan Terrace

Affectionately known as 'the horse-shoe block' for its iconic U-shape, this five-storey apartment building, completed in 1940, is the largest single block of flats in the area. One section of the building also houses a civilian air raid shelter, making it the only public housing estate at the time that was built with a shelter as part of its design.

Address: 78 Moh Guan Terrace

Dancing Girl Sculpture

The district's first piece of public art is located in Seng Poh Garden. Sculpted by Sarawak-born artist, Lim Nang Sang, who also created the iconic Merlion statue, the concrete 1.2-metre-high 'Dancing Girl' sculpture was commissioned to be the centrepiece of the landscaped garden in 1972.

Barbary Coast

On the corner of North Canal and Lor Telok, a historic building dating back to the early 1800s has been transformed by dual-concept Barbary Coast. Occupying the lower level, Deadfall reminisces the style of bars that peppered the original Barbary Coast in San Francisco, and features creatively crafted cocktails that are affordable. The upper level of Barbary Coast is a contrast to Deadfall—named The Ballroom, its offerings are highbrow and elegant. Guests to The Ballroom should adhere to its 'no slippers' dress code.

As a space with varied options across both levels, the bar caters to visitors of different calibre and is inviting to all.

EAT & DRINK

From the humble local favourites served in hawker centres to refined plates at celebrity chef restaurants, the country's culinary landscape has it all.

Foodies travelling to Singapore have countless options when it comes to eating—from restaurants steeped in heritage and tradition to establishments serving up contemporary delicacies in unique settings. For foodies looking for a culinary adventure, the influences of the Chinese, Malay and Indian cultures have created a unique variety of flavourful dishes. Those who would like to have halal, vegan or vegetarian food will also be spoilt for choice, thanks to eateries catering to diverse dietary preferences. Every meal is a chance to indulge in something different, in new atmospheres, and in new ways.

CULINARY TRENDS FOR 2020

The food and drinks scene in Singapore has never been more exciting. The country has a wide variety of award-winning restaurants, trendy dining concepts and homegrown culinary talents. Visitors will never run out of options to enjoy a memorable meal in Singapore.

Casual Fare From Michelin Chefs

Singapore's dining scene is decorated with star-studded Michelin restaurants and several have chosen to take the road less travelled—casual open concepts that are accessible to the mass public. Travellers will be able to find Meatsmith Western BBQ, a hawker stall at Makansutra Gluttons Bay (see Supper Spots, p135) opened by chef Dave Pynt of Michelin-starred Burnt Ends (see Celebrity Fine Dining, p118). Travellers may also check out Elfuego™ by COLLIN'S® (see Halal Restaurant, p123), a halal dining establishment opened by chef Koh Han Jie, one of the youngest Singaporean head chefs and who was previously from Les Amis (see Celebrity Fine Dining, p120). Chef Rishi Naleendra has even made a bold move to close down one-Michelin-starred Cheek by Jowl. It was rebranded as Cheek Bistro—offering a casual concept for all diners that has also earned its own Michelin star in 2019.

Cheers To Local Microbrewery

Most are familiar with Tiger Beer, a local brewery founded in 1932, which has made its name as a leading beer brand producing refreshing Asian lagers. While Tiger Beer is a must-try, visitors may be interested to sample a cold brew from a local microbrewery. Located at the swanky neighbourhood of Dempsey Hill, RedDot® Brewhouse (www.reddotbrewhouse.com.sg)—Singapore's first locally-owned microbrewery, serves hand-crafted beers that emanate a unique aroma from its unfiltered and unprocessed brew. Crafted by an aeronautical engineer, the Manuka Stout is refreshing with its honeyed flavours. LeVeL33 (www.level33.com.sg) is another must-visit. Located in the penthouse of the Marina Bay Financial Centre, it is billed as the highest urban craft brewery in the world, offering five delicious brews on tap along with panoramic views of the Marina Bay skyline.

Hawker Culture

Populated by passionate foodies, Singaporeans enjoy a wide variety of good food at affordable prices. Hawker centres, which are an indispensable pillar of the Singaporean way of life, each offer numerous cuisines. Lau Pa Sat (see Hawker Centres, p130) is a historic building designed in the 1830s and located in the heart of the Central Business District (CBD). It is home to local favourites and international cuisines like North Indian, Korean and Vietnamese. Singapore's famous Satay Street runs parallel to Lau Pa Sat, where Stalls 7 and 8 arguably sell the best rendition of grilled beef and chicken skewers (satay). At the heart of the cultural precinct of Little India, is Tekka Centre (see Hawker Centres, p131). Ethnic garments and accessories are sold on its upper floor, while the dum briyani (an Indian spiced rice dish with meat) and Indian rojak (mixed fritters of dough, potato and shrimp) of its food stalls below are touted as some of the best in the country.

Healthy Eating Gets Bigger

Healthy eating in Singapore extends beyond salad bars. Besides vegetarian and vegan eateries, there are also fast dining concepts like The Daily Cut (www.thedailycut.sg) and Grain Traders (www.grain-traders.com) where visitors can pick and choose their grilled meats, vegetables (fresh and cooked) and toppings. At Le Garden Seafood (www.facebook.com/legardenseafood), the traditional steamboat is replaced by a high-speed steaming cooking technique, which locks in the food's natural juices and nutrients, resulting in a healthier, less fatty meal. At Project Acai (www.project-acai.com)—Singapore's first dedicated acai café that has grown to four outlets islandwide, travellers can delight in fruity or nutty acai bowls. Instead of visiting one or two spots, visitors can also tour several and taste a variety of delectable vegan dishes on vegan food crawls by VegThisCity (www.facebook.com/vegthiscity).

Modern Singapore Cuisine

Over the years, Singapore's cuisine has evolved beyond its traditional hawker dishes such as chilli crab and chicken rice (see Local Favourites, p106). Innovative chefs have reworked the rich nuances and diverse textures of these dishes in their modern-day interpretations, making their mark on the local culinary landscape with Modern Singaporean Cuisine or 'mod-sin' cuisine. Pioneered by chef-owner Han Li Guang of Restaurant Labyrinth (see Modern Singapore Restaurants, p128), 'mod-sin' dishes include Local Wild Caught

BBR by Alain Ducasse

Crab, a creative reinterpretation of a Singaporean favourite, the chilli crab (see Local Favourites, p107). At local bistro, The Quarters (see Modern Singapore Restaurants, p128), guests can order creations that fuse Singaporean flavours with Western cuisine such as the Satay Burger, comprising spiced meat drizzled with peanut sauce and served between two rice patties.

More Renowned International Establishments

In 2019, restaurants and eateries from around the world have set up shop in Singapore. BBR by Alain Ducasse (see Celebrity Fine Dining, p118) has made its debut in Southeast Asia right in Raffles Hotel Singapore (see Stay, p30) and it is joined in by La Dame de Pic (see Celebrity Fine Dining, p120)—also making its debut in Asia. New York burger joint, Shake Shack has also opened its first outlet in Singapore at Jewel Changi Airport (see Shopping, Malls, p142). It boasts of uniquely Singapore offerings such as Pandan Shake—a vanilla frozen custard blended with pandan, coconut, and topped with gula melaka (palm sugar) crumble, and Jewel Melaka—vanilla frozen custard mixed with coconut salted caramel, Lemuel chocolate chunks, shortbread, and gula melaka.

Rise of Next Generation Hawkers

Singapore's hawker food is getting a boost, thanks to second-generation and third-generation hawkers inspired to keep the country's love for hawker food alive, sometimes with a modern twist. MICHELIN Bib Gourmand awardee A Noodle Story (www.facebook.com/anoodlestory) utilises modern European techniques to create Singapore-style ramen, which is a cross between Japanese ramen and Hong Kong-style wonton noodles (a noodle dish with Chinese dumplings), served with a sous-vide char siew (barbecued pork). Kway Guan Huat Joo Chiat Popiah (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p76) is a legacy family business that started in 1938. Singaporeans from all over the island come here for the home-style popiah (fresh spring roll with vegetables and assorted filling). Famed for their delicate, paper-thin yet sturdy popiah skins, they are still handmade daily by a third-generation family member.

Sustainability Is Here To Stay

Climate change has been a growing issue over the decades and unsurprisingly, the younger generation are jumping onto the sustainability bandwagon, giving rise to a trove of restaurants and eateries that champion the cause. Coined by a Californian company, Impossible™ meat has been making waves in the food industry with meat products that are substituted with plant-based ingredients. These juicy burgers deliver the taste and look of a meaty burger to the tee without the potential health and environmental issues associated with livestock products. One of the places to savour these sustainable burgers is VeganBurg (see Vegetarian, p133) in the Eunos neighbourhood. Farm-to-table concepts are very popular as well, Open Farm Community (www.openfarmcommunity.com) serves locally sourced, seasonal and innovative dishes with the very concept as well. Yet another trend is nose-to-tail dining where chefs incorporate as many parts of an animal into their dish as possible. Ding Dong (see Modern Singapore Restaurants, p127) at Amoy Street does just that, offering exotic dishes like five spice lamb tongue with pickled cucumber and black pepper sauce.

Vegan And Vegetarian Dining

Vegans and vegetarians can look forward to a plethora of food options on the sunny island. Chinese options can be found at homegrown vegetarian restaurant chain Grove Café (www.facebook.com/grove.singapore) and vegan/vegetarian restaurant chain Greendot (www.greendot.sg). Restaurants like Afterglow by ANGLow and Whole Earth (see Vegetarian, p131 and p133 respectively) serve up mouth-watering vegetarian and vegan-friendly dishes with unique twists. For a more indulgent meal, visitors can dine at VeganBurg's Singapore outlet (see Vegetarian, p133) in the Eunos neighbourhood. The fast food eatery's juicy burgers deliver the taste and look of a meaty burger to the tee but is completely vegetarian—with its Impossible™ patties made with plant-based ingredients.

INCREASED INTEREST IN VEGANISM

Google trends show that there is a seven-fold increase in interest in veganism from 2014 to 2019. Veganism is truly here to stay.

LOCAL FAVOURITES

The country's reputation as a food lover's paradise is not without good reason. Thanks to its multi-ethnic make-up and key culinary influences from Chinese, Malay and Indian cultures, Singapore offers a variety of food and flavours. While chicken rice is often called the national dish, others would argue that chilli crab, which was concocted in Singapore in the 1950s, also deserves that label. Regardless of dietary or religious preferences, visitors to Singapore will have plenty of dishes to try and meals to remember.

Chicken Rice

One of Singapore's most famous dishes, chicken rice can be found everywhere, from hawker centres and food courts to casual eateries and high-end restaurants. Visitors can sample different versions of the traditional dish, where the chicken is blanched and soaked in cold water to keep the meat tender. There's also a roasted or braised style; each with a distinct taste. Pay attention to the quality of rice and chilli sauce served—the rice should be lightly-oiled and fragrant, while the chilli dip should have a zing of ginger to it. From S$5 per serving.

Chilli Crab

What started as a dish purportedly sold from a pushcart in the 1950s has now become a star in the global food scene. One of the earliest versions of chilli crab—mud crabs stir-fried with tomato and chilli sauce—is still on the menu of Roland Restaurant in Marine Parade Central. A more modern and widely common recipe these days includes sambal (chilli paste), eggs and tomato paste for a rich, umami taste that's finger-licking good. Most restaurants offer Sri Lankan crabs and there is also a more deluxe option of Alaskan king crabs. Diners can order mantous (fried or steamed buns), to dip into the gravy. From S$30 per crab (depending on weight).

Fish Head Curry

One of the country's most iconic dishes, it aptly represents Singapore's multicultural tradition. There are Chinese, Malay, Indian and Peranakan (Straits-born people of Chinese and Malay/Indonesian heritage) versions, with each ethnic group making subtle variations to the curry sauce. Some mix in tamarind for a touch of sourness, others add coconut milk for a creamier texture, and pineapple is sometimes added for a dash of fruitiness to the gravy. The one similarity though is the use of the head of a red snapper, along with a mix of vegetables, such as okra (lady's fingers) and eggplant. From S$25 per serving.

Fried Carrot Cake

There's no carrot in this carrot cake. Instead, blocks of white radish are steamed, cut into cubes and stir-fried with garlic, eggs and chye poh (Chinese preserved radish) in either dark soy sauce (black version) or without (white version). The wok hei—literally 'breath of the wok', a cooking technique that involves tossing food in a wok—is an all-important element of this affordable hawker staple, giving it a smoky and flavourful taste. From S$3 per serving.

Hokkien Prawn Mee

The yellow noodles and thick bee hoon (rice vermicelli) are stir-fried with succulent prawns, squid, pork belly strips and egg in a rich stock made from pork bones and prawn heads. This dish is often served with sambal (chilli paste) and a squeeze of fresh lime for extra zest. A big contributor to the overall taste lies in the skill of the hawker imparting wok hei—literally 'breath of the wok', a cooking technique that involves tossing food in a wok—for a fuller, bolder flavour. Some places add fried pork lard as a crunchy topping. From S$3 per serving.

HAWKER STALLS OF CULTURAL HERITAGE

Both Ah Hok Fried Hokkien Noodles and Nam Sing Hokkien Fried Mee are one of the few hawker stalls that trace its lineage back to the founder of the dish.

Kaya Toast

A popular breakfast item amongst locals, kaya toast is also eaten as a snack during teatime. The rich kaya spread—a traditional jam made from coconut, eggs and pandan leaves (which results in green kaya) or palm sugar (which makes brown kaya)—is slathered between slabs of cold butter and crusty bread. Pair it with a local kopi (coffee) or teh (tea), and the meal is complete. Many locals also eat it with two soft-boiled eggs mixed with dark soy sauce and a dash of pepper. From S$3.50 per serving.

Laksa

This spicy dish is made of vermicelli noodles flavoured with coconut milk and dried shrimp, and topped with prawns, cockles, eggs, fishcake and freshly julienned aromatic laksa leaf. Hawkers across the island whip up different renditions of this dish. Visitors should try the Katong laksa, which has short noodles swimming in the spicy coconut broth. Other versions include the curry-like Sarawak laksa and the tamarind-infused Penang laksa. Regardless of which version, the result will be the same—one of pure satisfaction. Nasi Lemak

Visiting foodies can expect a mix of flavours and textures from nasi lemak, a popular breakfast meal with the locals. It comprises rice cooked in coconut milk—some cook the rice with pandan leaves to give it extra fragrance and a green colour—with side servings of deep-fried fish or chicken wings, otah (spicy fish paste grilled in banana leaf), fried ikan bilis (anchovies) with peanuts, eggs, cucumber slices and sambal (chilli paste). The sambal is a key ingredient; it should be robust and spiked with the flavour of shallots and ground dried shrimp. From S$3 per serving.

Rojak

The key to this unique Asian salad lies in its dark, sticky sauce—made up of fermented prawn paste, sugar, lime and chilli paste—which explains its sweet yet savoury taste. With a name that means 'eclectic mix' in colloquial Malay, rojak is made up of a variety of ingredients and textures. It has fresh cucumber, pineapple, tofu puff and you tiao (dough fritters) tossed in prawn paste and tamarind sauce, and garnished with chopped peanuts. This dish is typically sold by Chinese hawkers at food centres. Some hotels also offer this at buffets where visitors can have a hand at creating their own version of rojak by mixing the sauce in a large bowl, before tossing in all the other ingredients. Roti Prata

Roti prata is a flaky South Indian flatbread, that is crispy on the outside but soft to the bite—best eaten plain or with an egg cracked onto it. It is often served with a savoury, spicy curry (fish and mutton are popular options). Some locals also eat it with sugar, or sweet toppings such as banana, chocolate sauce or ice cream. Different stall owners produce roti pratas with different textures, but the technique is always the same: a skillful twirl of the dough till it is paper-thin before folding it in and cooking it on a greased griddle. Modern renditions of roti prata sees it served with ice cream or chicken floss. From S$1 per serving.

UNIQUE DINING CONCEPTS

Dining in Singapore can be an exciting and unusual affair. From dining amidst nature to meals enjoyed on board a sightseeing bus, unconventional dining experiences await visitors.

Camp Kilo Charcoal Club

Dig into a selection of roasted meats at barbecue restaurant Camp Kilo Charcoal Club. The outdoor seating venue allows guests to watch as chefs roast a 30 kg hog over a self-made spit in their open kitchen. Camp Kilo's whole Roasted Pig (S$12++ for 100g) is marinated with spices, lemongrass, garlic and spring onions before cooking it for more than four hours. Other barbecue options include the Chipotle BBQ Ribs (S$15++ for half, S$30++ for whole), Crispy Pork Belly (S$10++ for 100g) and Sambal

Stingray (S$25++)—stingray grilled with dried shrimp chilli paste (S$25++). Kilo's Grilled Eggplant (S$10++) topped with miso mayo, bonito flakes, sesame seeds and spring onions, makes an excellent side dish for the meaty mains. To complete the meal, pair the succulent meats with a refreshing glass of Kilo's Rum Punch (S$17++ per glass; S$85 per cooler) or Coquito Colada—homemade orange-infused rum (S$18++).

Hua Bee/Bincho

Located in the hip Tiong Bahru enclave (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p91) is a dual concept eatery. In the day, it is Hua Bee kopitiam (local coffeeshop) where diners can tuck into mee pok (flat yellow egg noodles), toast and local coffee. At night, yakitori (grilled meat on skewers) restaurant Bincho takes over the space—part of which retains the classic Singapore kopitiam décor with marble tables, wooden chairs and tiled walls. Charcoal-grilled chicken is the main focus of the lunch and dinner set menus that range from S$25++ to S$90++ per pax. After dinner, step into Bincho's bar area where Japanese-inspired cocktails, whiskey and sake (a Japanese alcoholic beverage) are served.

Kausmo NEW

Derived from the word "Cosmos"—a system of thought, Kausmo promotes thoughtful living by challenging food norms that bring about unnecessary wastage. Brain child of co-founders Lisa Tang and Kuah Chew Shian, the concept hopes to creatively repurpose aesthetically filtered fruits and vegetables that are overstocked, over-ripened, and oddly-shaped and sized. Kausmo also utilises seafood from small farming communities in the region, secondary cuts of meat which are often overlooked in favour of prime cuts, and forgotten native greens and florals. Created using European techniques with Asian influences, each dish presents a thoughtful approach for guests to think about how they can all make more conscientious choices in their everyday lives and contribute to a more sustainable ecosystem, in Singapore and beyond. Kausmo's menu is seasonal and visitors will be delighted by its everchanging offerings with every visit. Its six-course Carte Blanche Menu is at S$75++ per diner and S$95++ per diner with Kombucha tasting. Flight of three Kombuchas will be complimentary for every diner brought by travel trade.

HERITAGE RESTAURANTS

Several restaurants in the country, with some dating back to pre-war days, have stood the test of time. Serving anything from Russo-Hainanese dishes to dim sum (bite-sized portions of food served in steamer baskets or small plates), these institutions are a testament to the locals' enduring love for authentic local food.

Ananda Bhavan Restaurant

Established in 1924, Ananda Bhavan Restaurant is the oldest Indian vegetarian restaurant in Singapore. Its popular set meals include vegetarian briyani (an Indian spiced rice dish with vegetables), but the real draw lies in fuss-free items like the boli (sweet lentil flatbread) and pani puri (crispy shells stuffed with tamarind chutney). It prides itself on the fact that no monosodium glutamate (MSG) preservatives or additives are used, keeping the wellness of guests in mind. Main courses from S$9++.

Chao Shan Cuisine

This go-to spot for Teochew cuisine can take up to 200 diners across three private rooms, and has a massive cold room to ensure premium ingredients are always available and fresh. The restaurant is well-known for its authentic Teochew dishes such as braised goose, yam paste, steamed fish and oyster omelette. A favourite is their version of char kway teow (stir-fried rice noodles in dark soya sauce)—chai poh kway teow (flat noodles with preserved radish) cooked with the right amount of wok hei (literally 'breath of the wok', a cooking technique that involves tossing food in a wok), so that each mouthful is a full-flavoured one. Visitors should save space to try the creamy orh nee (yam paste) for dessert. Main courses from S$20++.

Fatty Weng

Once a humble roadside stall, this heritage Cantonese zi char (traditional dishes influenced by home-cooked Chinese food) style restaurant is known for its affordably priced Cantonese dishes starting from just S$10.80, such as a deep-fried soon hock (a species of fish native to Asia). While it has now relocated to Chinatown—adding new private dining rooms that can be reserved for 40 to 120 guests—the restaurant retains its stellar standards with iconic dishes such as the pan fried vermicelli 'bowl' with seafood, and honey pork ribs that are cooked to tender perfection. Visitors should take the opportunity to try their version of an iconic Singapore dish: chilli crab (see Local Favourites, p107) with thick and spicy sauce. Set menus start from S$58++ for two.

ENJOY A BLAST FROM THE PAST

Red Star Restaurant's retro interiors and menus have hardly changed since 1971. It is also one of the last surviving push cart dim sum restaurants in Singapore.

Samy's Curry

This family-owned business opened more than 50 years ago in a corner of Dempsey Road and continues to draw diners to that very same location today. The Indian restaurant, simply decorated and mostly ventilated by ceiling fans, seats up to 300 guests and serves dishes on fresh banana leaves. Diners can choose from dishes like biryani (an Indian spiced rice dish with meat or vegetables), fried cauliflower, Mysore mutton and masala (a marinade of mixed Indian spices) chicken; or order their bestsellers such as the fish cutlet and curry fish head—fresh red snapper fish head stewed in a curry with assorted vegetables.

NAGAJYOTHI MAHENDRAN

Director of Samy's Curry

“Running a restaurant is tough. Long hours, shortage of staff, high costs and high competition. And then a customer comes up to me and says “I love your food.” And suddenly, it makes it all worthwhile.”

It was at 19 when Nagajyothi Mahendran, fresh out of junior college, had to step up to lead her family's business—Samy's Curry. As a 3rd generation successor, she works hard to improve and innovate in the restaurant. No ordinary restaurant, it has over 50 years of culinary heritage and is one of Singapore's oldest South Indian restaurants. Her father has since recovered and watches over as Nagajyothi and her brother helm the business.

Shashlik Restaurant

Since the 1980s, Shashlik Restaurant has been serving up Russo-Hainanese cuisine in Singapore. Its interior bears nostalgic details and its dishes are wheeled out on trolleys. The main courses start from S$20++ and include favourites that have been featured in the media such as the chicken à la Kiev and beef stronganoff. No meal is complete without the theatrical tableside service of baked Alaska for dessert.

CELEBRITY FINE DINING

Singapore's fine-dining scene is peppered with award-winning and celebrity chef restaurants serving a range of cuisines—from Japanese to Italian and French—making it perfect for visitors who wish to indulge in quality gourmet food. Many of these restaurants serve only set menus with no à la carte choices. Most of these establishments generally have a smart casual dress code (no shorts, slippers or sandals) but some restaurants like JAAN by Kirk Westaway (see p119), have a stricter elegant dress code (suit and tie, formal dress, pant suit).

Adrift by David Myers

Started by Los-Angeles based celebrity chef David Myers, Adrift by David Myers prepares dishes using fresh Californian ingredients with Asian inspiration. The restaurant's large seating area is adorned with sofas, cushions and floor-to-ceiling windows that fill the space with natural sunlight by day and provides an intimate backdrop by night. Guests can order signature dishes such as the Wagyu Cheeseburger Spring Roll with Caviar (S$8++) and the Striploin A5 from Saga Prefecture served with Asian condiments (S$115++ per 100g). For a bespoke dining experience, guests can opt for the Omakase dinner and let the chef curate a special menu. Corner House 50

At Corner House, chef Jason Tan's culinary philosophy takes vegetables to a whole new level. The one-Michelin-starred restaurant is located in a two-storey colonial black and white bungalow in Singapore Botanic Gardens (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p66) and has also been ranked on Asia's 50 Best Restaurants 2019. The restaurant's speciality is French cuisine with elements of 'Gastro-Botanica'—a term chef Tan came up with to demonstrate his use of vegetables as more than just garnishes. A must-try for visitors is chef Tan's signature dish—Oignon doux des Cévennes (Cévennes onion done four ways)—which comprises onion tea, crisp onion chips, wafer-thin onion tart topped with onion confit and parmesan cheese, and sweet onion purée with sous-vide egg topped with black truffle. The eight-course Discovery Menu Experience is designed for visitors who prefer to leave the menu decision to the chef. The restaurant's Claret Corner, which accommodates up to eight people, is ideal for groups.

The three-Michelin-starred Les Amis made her maiden debut back in 1994 as Singapore's first independent fine dining restaurant. Today, under the leadership of the highly decorated chef Sebastien Lepinoy, Les Amis timeless elegance is echoed in every single detail which has been carefully crafted to take guests on an exceptional culinary journey. The restaurant's uncompromising dedication to deliver a memorable dining experience has not only earned them the coveted three Michelin stars, but international recognition from several established institutions such as Forbes Travel Guide, Asia's 50 Best Restaurants, Wine Spectator and Les Grandes Tables Du Monde to name a few. Chef Lepinoy's collection of recipes features a plethora of prized seasonal ingredients sourced from all over France. All his dishes are prepared with finesse and a high level of technicality, displaying true mastery of French gastronomy.

AWARDS Best Dining Experience
(2016 / 2019)

This fine dining French restaurant was awarded two Michelin stars in 2016, 2017 and 2018 and is ranked 1st on Asia's 50 Best Restaurants 2019 and 18th on World's 50 Best Restaurants 2019. Located within the beautiful grounds of the National Gallery Singapore (see Attractions, Arts, Museums & Heritage, p55), Odette serves modern French cuisine that's inspired by co-owner and award-winning chef Julien Royer's grandmother, whom the restaurant is named after. It even has a private dining room—which can accommodate up to ten pax—that is perfect for guests who prefer some privacy. Chef Royer's devotion to seasonal produce and pure flavours is shown in every dish that comes out of his kitchen. These include the 55' smoked organic egg, and Hokkaido uni.

Restaurant JAG

Inspired by the beauty and nature of the mountainsides in Savoie, France, Restaurant JAG takes an artisanal approach in creating culinary masterpieces that inspire. 40 thoughtfully selected indigenous herbs were exclusively flown in from France and their distinctive traits are highlighted in each of Restaurant JAG's dishes. The establishment also houses The Lounge Bar, Singapore's only French craft cocktail bar. It offers a nature-inspired menu and incorporates the 40 herbs flown directly from the stunning French Alps into its dedicated drink selection. A smart casual dress code that prohibits shorts and flip flops applies, and children have to be at least ten years old to dine at the restaurant.

JEREMY GILLION

Chef-owner of Restaurant JAG

“Food to me is about sharing. International producers share their best ingredients with us, which we carefully prepare to create an unforgettable moment for our diners.”

Inspired by a herb forager who had a collection of herbs with medicinal properties from the French Alps, chef-owner Jeremy Gillion has been experimenting with these herbs in his dishes even before he opened Restaurant JAG. Now whenever he wishes to create a dish, he envisions the flavours he wishes to bring out and matches them with specific French herbs—resulting in culinary masterpieces.

Restaurant Zén

Restaurant Zén is the Singapore outpost of three-Michelin-starred contemporary Nordic restaurant—Restaurant Frantzén in Stockholm, Sweden. It is the only international restaurant under the Frantzén Group to serve a tasting menu exclusively. HALAL RESTAURANTS

Halal food—in Arabic, halal means 'permissible'—is food that adheres to Islamic law, which covers everything from its source to preparation. With the sizeable Muslim community in Singapore, there is no shortage of halal establishments, which are 100% Muslim-owned or are certified by Majlis Ugama Islam Singapura (MUIS; also known as Islamic Religious Council of Singapore). Travellers can find halal cafes and restaurants across the island, especially in the Muslim ethnic enclaves, such as Arab Street and Kampong Glam (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p74). From café fare to Asian inspired Mexican dishes, halal food in Singapore is aplenty.

(working title) – Burger Bar

This unassuming café offers delicious options for brunch, lunch and dinner. Visitors can look forward to savouring bites such as the popular Ribena wings ($9.90+). Burger lovers can feast on the signature Tower of Power (S$23.90+), a burger stuffed with three freshly ground beef patties with cheddar cheese, caramelised onions crushed tater tots, romaine lettuce, tomatoes, and homemade BBQ sauce. Diners can even get creative and build their own burger from an array of ingredients available on the menu.

Bismillah Biryani ٥٤

What began as a tiny stall in a food court, opened by Mr Arif Salahuddin, has grown into an award-winning heritage brand with four outlets. Unlike other biryani (an Indian spiced rice dish with meat or vegetables) restaurants, Bismillah Biryani offers a healthy and tasty version of this dish, which is served without curry. The restaurant serves dum style (steaming) biryani, which involves cooking the rice and meat together evenly and allowing the ingredients to soak up the flavours and spices. The secret to its Biryani (from S$6) lies in its expert handling of basmati (long-grain rice)—it is important to get the temperature and cooking time right, so that the rice is not overcooked. The dish is cooked digitally in ovens to ensure a controlled setting for cooking to be even and quality to be consistently maintained. The result? Tender chunks of meat and the irresistible aroma of authentic dum biryani, one of the many reasons that this eatery made the MICHELIN guide's Bib Gourmand list for four consecutive years, from 2016 to 2019.

MODERN SINGAPORE RESTAURANTS

Over the years, Singapore's cuisine has evolved beyond its traditional hawker dishes such as chilli crab and chicken rice (see Local Favourites, p106). Innovative chefs have reworked the rich nuances and diverse textures of these dishes in their modern-day interpretations, making their mark on the local culinary landscape. The result is a plethora of dining options offering flavours that are best described as Modern Singapore.

Ding Dong

A modern Southeast Asian restaurant well-loved for its playful and eclectic take on traditional Asian cuisine, Ding Dong takes diners on an experiential journey of culinary surprises. Lip-smacking starters include Blue Swimmer Chilli Crab, Tomato Relish And Kuih Pie Tee (S$22++) as well as Scallop Cheong Fun, Ginger Flower Gel and Thai Basil Oil (S$24++). Signature mains are Pork Collar Char Siew, Baby Leeks and Pineapple Mousse (S$33++) and Lamb Shank, Chickpeas and Soup Merah (S$32++). Diners will be immersed in the region's culture and culinary tastes as Ding Dong explores contemporary yet nostalgic textures and ingredients, drawing inspiration from Southeast Asian flavours. Ding Dong's selection of specially handcrafted Asian cocktails and boutique wines make great pairings with the sumptuous dishes as well.

JustIN Flavours of Asia and Chinoiserie Modern Asian by Justin Quek

Singapore's pioneer celebrity chef Justin Quek redefines the quintessential Singaporean gourmet experience at his casual all-day diner JustIN Flavours of Asia and Chinoiserie Modern Asian by Justin Quek. As a leading chef from Asia, he has served numerous politicians and dignitaries such as former Chinese president Jiang Zemin and Microsoft founder Bill Gates. He was also the chef for Singapore's late Minister Mentor Lee Kuan Yew's birthday dinners since 1993. At lunchtime, diners can enjoy the umami-packed prawn noodles with pork belly along with Gula Java (coconut blossom sugar) ice cream on brioche bread for dessert. In the evening, the foie gras xiao long bao (soup dumplings with meat filling) and wok-fired lobster Hokkien noodle are some of chef Justin's signature dishes, which are not to be missed. The outdoor dining area is a prime seating area to have a cocktail and watch the Spectra – A Light & Water Show in the Marina Bay.

Po

Po takes the position of the flagship restaurant of The Warehouse Hotel—a meticulously restored godown on the banks of the Singapore River (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p89). Po—or a syllable of the Chinese term for grandmother—serves up local classics refined and elevated with premium ingredients. Highlights include its Popiah Platter (from S$28++)—best savoured with a fine bubbly, Carabinero Prawns & Konbu Mee (S$32++) and Herbal Pork Bone Broth (S$24++). The restaurant brings culture, heritage and cuisine together to celebrate local flavours and remind diners of the simple joys of having heart-warming meals with their loved ones.

Restaurant Ibid

Founded by chef Woo Wai Leong, winner of MasterChef Asia 2015, Restaurant Ibid pays homage to chef Woo's Chinese heritage as well as the Western culinary skills he has acquired over the years. Chef Woo's guiding principles in cooking comes from his combined experiences and knowledge gleaned from various stints in the food and beverage industry—from bartending to dinner hosting. A favourite from the restaurant's menu is the Ibid Roast Duck (S$88++, pre-order for groups of four and above) and baked black glutinous rice mochi. The restaurant's Beef Short Rib is cooked sous vide for 72 hours before being served alongside Chinese pear and crispy black fungus. Diners can choose from a six-course (S$98++) or nine-course (S$138++) tasting menu. Contact chef Woo Wai Leong for travel trade deals.

Restaurant Labyrinth

Restaurant Labyrinth, which received one Michelin star in 2017, 2018 and 2019, serves innovative dishes created by chef-owner Han Li-Guang, who uses a range of culinary techniques to reinvent traditional local recipes. An example is the Labyrinth Rojak that features a mixture of herbs that thrive in Singapore's climate. The herbs are tossed in rojak (a sweet savoury salad of vegetables and assorted filling) sauce made with fermented prawn paste and natural raw unpasteurized honey from Batam collected from a single varietal stingless bee breed. In support of the local farming community, the restaurant's menus are 90% locally-sourced. It offers lunch and dinner set menus as well as a pre-theatre set menu from Thursday to Sunday for guests attending performances at the Esplanade – Theatres on the Bay (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p84). The menus change from time to time, and guest can check the restaurant's website or call for updated menus and prices. Visitors may also inform the restaurant of any dietary restrictions.

The Quarters

The Quarters celebrates Singaporean culture and food through innovative takes on local classics. The familiar flavours of local food are reimaged into bite-sized morsels of delicious that would tantalize visitors and locals alike. Fwah! (S$18++), a kaya (a traditional jam made from coconut and eggs) toast inspired dish topped with foie gras is iconic while the Ayam Shiok Burgers (S$14++) (oat battered chicken burgers) are popular and can be enjoyed with Salted Egg, Lemak Curry or Buah Keluak Sauces. Their Duriancanboleah (S$9++)—a crème brûlée flavoured with durian (a spiky tropical fruit that is unique to Southeast Asia)—is their signature take on what they believe in Singapore's best durian dessert experience. Starting from S$50++, The Quarters Experience is an omakase menu that can be enjoyed during dinners. Tucked into a cosy corner in Tanjong Pagar, the restaurant's cosy ambience makes a comfortable space for couples and small groups to enjoy their evenings.

HAWKER CENTRES

A visit to Singapore would not be complete without a meal at a hawker centre. It is where visitors can find Singaporeans from all walks of life tucking into affordable local food in a casual setting. At these open-air food courts, the best local dishes can be sampled for under S$10. This includes delicious meals from different ethnic groups—Chinese, Indian, Malay and Eurasian—as well as halal and vegetarian options (see Halal Restaurants, p122 and Vegetarian, p131). From the hustle and bustle to the sights and smells, visiting a lively hawker centre is a sensory experience not to be missed. Though stalls may operate at different timings, hawker centres generally open from early morning till late.

Amoy Street Food Centre

Located in the heart of the Central Business District (CBD), this popular two-storey food centre is always crowded during weekday lunch (generally from 11.30am to 1.30pm). It is home to MICHELIN Bib Gourmand awardee, A Noodle Story (#01-39), which serves Singapore-style ramen fusing East-West flavours. Also popular is Chinese-style Li Xing Nasi Lemak (#02-81), which offers a S$3 set meal that often sells out before noon. Visitors can also try a bowl of thick fish slices in a delicate broth from Han Kee Fish Soup (#02-129), but visitors are advised to go early or risk having to queue for 30 minutes.

Address: 7 Maxwell Road

Opening Hours: Mon–Fri 6.30am–9pm

Nearest MRT: Tanjong Pagar Station / Telok Ayer Station

Chinatown Complex Food Centre & Chinatown Food Street

Travellers can take a break while exploring Chinatown (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p70) to enjoy local food at these two spots. At Chinatown Complex Food Centre, seek out one-Michelin-starred Liao Fan Hong Kong Soya Sauce Chicken Rice & Noodle Stall (#02-126), where there is always a queue. Starting at S$2 per plate, it is one of the world's cheapest Michelin-starred meals. At Lian He Bei Ji Claypot Rice (#02-198/199), visitors can try slightly charred sweet soy sauce rice studded with chunks of meat. Over at Chinatown Food Street, the area has been converted into an alfresco food trail. Visitors should try Katong Keah Kee Fried Oysters (Stall 5) and Newton Circus Ahmad Ibrahim Satay (Stall 19) among the 24 street hawker stalls and six shophouse restaurants.

Address: Chinatown Food Street, along Smith Street

Opening Hours: (Chinatown Complex Food Centre) 7am–9pm; (Chinatown Food Street) Mon–Sun 11am–11pm

Nearest MRT: Chinatown Station

East Coast Lagoon Food Village

Opened in 1977 along East Coast Beach Park, East Coast Lagoon Food Village is a popular hawker centre among beach-goers and families in the Bedok neighbourhood. With tables built close to the beach, visitors can sample a variety of local favourites while enjoying the sea breeze and a view of the calm sea waters. Dig into a plate of fragrant char kway teow (stir-fried rice noodles in dark soya sauce) from Choon Hiang (#01-46), whose owner has been cooking since the age of 12. For a complete seaside experience, visitors can order seafood such as sambal (chilli paste) stingray from Stingray Forever BBQ Seafood (#01-43).

Address: 1220 East Coast Parkway

Opening Hours: Mon–Sun 11am–midnight

Nearest MRT: Bedok Station

Geylang Serai Market and Food Centre

Housing a wide variety of Malay and Indian food, Geylang Serai Market and Food Centre makes a great stop for hungry travellers. For tasty bites, visit Kueh Talam Asli (#02-148) for an assortment of kueh talam, a two-layered Malaysian dessert, and Otak-Otak Kampung (#02-164) for otah (spicy fish paste grilled in banana leaf). For a hearty meal, tuck into Malay-style chicken rice at Nasi Ayam Sambal (#02-129). Its unique spicy sambal adds a kick to the dish and is highly recommended. To cool down, enjoy smooth and deliciously rich chendol (a dessert with jelly, coconut milk and palm sugar syrup) from Cendol Geylang Serai (#02-107).

Address: 1 Geylang Serai

Opening Hours: Mon–Sun 6am–9pm

Nearest MRT: Paya Lebar Station / Eunos Station

Lau Pa Sat

Lau Pa Sat

Built in the 19th century with distinctive colonial architecture, Lau Pa Sat was declared a national monument in 1973. Located in the heart of the financial district, this open-air food court offers local dishes as well as international cuisine such as Korean, Japanese, Indian and Vietnamese. At 7pm, the outdoor area is transformed into a mini satay (grilled meat skewers) street. Stalls 7 and 8 are popular for their tasty skewers of chicken, lamb, beef and pork. Some satay stalls are halal-certified. Lau Pa Sat operates 24 hours a day, so visitors can drop by any time to enjoy the wide array of local hawker food within an elegant old-world setting.

Address: 18 Raffles Quay

Opening Hours: Select stalls are open 24 hours daily

Nearest MRT: Raffles Place Station

Maxwell Food Centre

What was once a wet market in the 1950s has become the popular Maxwell Food Centre today. One of its biggest draws is Tian Tian Hainanese Chicken Rice (#01-10/11)—whose world-famous chicken rice beat chef Gordon Ramsay's version in the Hawker Heroes Challenge. Also popular is the crispy, deep fried oyster cake snack at Maxwell Fuzhou Oyster Cake (#01-05) that has become a rare speciality. Another highlight is Zhen Zhen Porridge (#01-54) for its comforting bowls of thick porridge cooked with chicken or fish. The stall closes after selling out so be sure to get there early before it's all wiped out.

Nearest MRT: Tanjong Pagar Station

Newton Food Centre

This famous hawker centre located near Orchard Road (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p85) remains a favourite of locals and visitors. With numerous barbecue seafood stalls to choose from, visitors should compare prices from different vendors before ordering. Iconic hawkers serving non-seafood local fare include Kwee Heng (#01-13), known for dry duck noodles with a distinct star anise and vinegar sauce; Bee Heng Popiah (#01-12), which makes Hokkien-style popiah (fresh spring roll with vegetables and assorted filling); and Hup Kee Oyster Omelette (#01-73), which uses plump and fragrant oysters. For dessert, try the cheng tng (a light, sweet soup with longan, barley and white fungus) from 88 San Ren Cold and Hot Dessert (#01-05).

Address: 500 Clemenceau Avenue North

Opening Hours: Mon–Sun noon–2am

Nearest MRT: Newton Station

Old Airport Road Food Centre

Built over 40 years ago, this is one of the largest hawker centres in Singapore and a highly recommended food stop for its abundance of Singapore hawker legends. Nam Sing Hokkien Fried Mee (#01-32) cooks a full-bodied version of the hawker staple. Western Barbeque (#01-53) offers an array of Western fare such as lamb chops, fish and chips and grilled meats. Toa Payoh Rojak (#01-108) serves Chinese style rojak, a salad of pineapple, cucumber, dough fritters and other ingredients tossed in tangy fermented prawn paste, sprinkled with roasted peanuts and tau pok (beancurd skin). Visitors should end their meal with a bowl of smooth and silky Lao Ban Soya Beancurd (#01-107).

Nearest MRT: Little India Station

Tiong Bahru Market and Food Centre

Indicative of Tiong Bahru's old-meets-new appeal (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p91), this establishment was built on the site of the old Seng Poh Road Market and reopened in 2006 as a two-storey market and food centre. The first floor lets visitors experience a typical Singapore wet market before heading upstairs to enjoy delicious local dishes. With over 80 stalls housed in an art deco-style building, the hawker centre houses many famous stalls. These include Jian Bo Shui Kueh (#02-05), serving traditional handmade chwee kueh (steamed rice cakes topped with preserved radish), and Tiong Bahru Lor Mee (#02-80), which sells lor mee (thick rice noodles in a rich gravy) with generous toppings such as braised pork belly, ngoh hiang (five-spice meat rolls) and fried wanton (Chinese dumplings), all for S$3 per bowl. Dessert stall Tian Tian Yuan Dessert House (#02-15) has over 80 hot and cold desserts to choose from. Order the S$2 ice kacang (sweet shaved ice with toppings) for a refreshing treat.

VEGETARIAN

Good food can be found everywhere in Singapore, and this is true not only for meat-lovers. Visitors will also find meat-free eateries offering a variety of meals and desserts to suit a range of budgets, cuisine types and dietary preferences, whether vegetarian, vegan or Jain-friendly. In fact, Singapore came in second on the Top 10 Vegan-Friendly Cities in Asia list unveiled by international animal rights group PETA in December 2016.

Afterglow by ANGLOW

Vegetarian-friendly, Vegan-friendly

A number of hip restaurants have opened along Keong Saik Road in Chinatown (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p70) over the past few years, turning this stretch into a popular spot for the working crowd in the area to unwind after a long day. Also located here is Afterglow by ANGLOW, an eatery that serves vegetarian, vegan and raw food. The restaurant works closely with local and regional farms to obtain fresh produce for its vibrant vegan dishes. This is where visitors can get raw lasagne made with zucchini (S$22++) and nut 'cheese' made from cashews (S$14++). Other popular items are the non-processed raw desserts (from S$10++) like the Raw Chocolate Salted Caramel Fudge. In the evenings, diners can soak in the ambience over wine,

Vegetarian-friendly, Jain-friendly

This social enterprise is the culinary branch of the Temple of Fine Arts Singapore and run mostly by volunteers. The menu changes regularly, but chutneys and dhal (Indian dish of cooked lentils) are always available. The restaurant's name is derived from the Hindu goddess of abundance and is a compound word made up of 'anna', which means 'food', and Lakshmi, the name of the goddess. Annalakshmi has a longstanding practice of offering diners the option to pay any amount they want for their meal. There will be a charge of S$15 per person for lunch and S$18 per person for dinner for dining groups larger than ten. As a form of courtesy, visitors should ideally not offer anything less than S$5 per person. The restaurant's other location at 104 Amoy Street is only open for lunch from Monday to Saturday (11am–3pm).

SUPPER SPOTS

As one of the world's most vibrant culinary capitals, Singapore takes every meal seriously—including supper. A night-time meal here is not just a quick snack before hitting the sack. It is typically a feast with friends that involves hours of conversation and catching up. Experience this slice of local culture at these spots that most Singaporeans will want to keep a secret.

Beauty in The Pot

Hotpot concept Beauty in The Pot is a great place for travellers to relish in steaming pots of rich soup. The restaurant offers six signature soup bases that are refillable—Signature Beauty Collagen Broth, Signature Spicy Nourishing Soup (pork bone soup), Herbal Drunken Chicken Broth, Cooling Coconut Broth, Longevity Wild Pine Mushroom Broth (vegetarian) and Vitamin C Tomato Sweet Corn Broth. Each adds its own flavour to the wide variety of premium hotpot ingredients available. Must-try items include the Signature Homemade Fish Tofu (S$2.20++/piece), which follows a secret recipe, and the Ebiko Prawn Paste (S$18.80++) that is handmade daily. All outlets have a children's playground for children to enjoy playtime while the parents can enjoy the food. For a more intimate dining setting, most outlets have private rooms that are available for booking.

Kko Kko Nara Korean Fried Chicken

Owned by Madam Eon Lee from Korea who permanently resides in Singapore, Kko Kko Nara Korean Fried Chicken is one of the pioneering restaurants to bring Korean fried chicken to Singapore. As its name suggests, the restaurant's signature dish is its Korean Fried Chicken. Kko Kko Nara Korean Fried Chicken was one of the first to introduce "Ma Neul Gan Jang" or Garlic Soy Sauce Chicken in Singapore served in wings and drumsticks. Made of hand crushed garlic and other secret ingredients imported from Korea, the sauce of the dish takes many hours to prepare to ensure its flavours are strong enough to envelope the chicken. Other than its chicken, the restaurant also offers a variety of Korean delicacies such as its best-selling soup, Army Stew—a stew with a myriad of ingredients: noodles, spam, sausage, rice cakes, baked beans, mushrooms, vegetables and a special paste.

CULTURAL & LIFESTYLE

Bras Basah.Bugis

In the past, Bugis Street Market, located in the Bras Basah.Bugis district (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p81), was filled with entertainment and alfresco dining, along with nightly adult-themed shows. Today, the bustling street market offers bargain hunters an array of apparel, accessories, quirky local souvenirs and eats. While wandering through the numerous shops, grab a bite at one of the snack stalls located within. With over 600 stores spread across three levels, shoppers will find something that appeals to them.

Chinatown

Singapore's cultural precinct of Chinatown (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p70) is a hive of activity day and night and a heady mix of old and new. Retail options range from traditional wares to indie boutiques and bespoke finds. Visitors can head to On Cheong Jewellery (www.oncheong.com) for gold jewellery that feature not only traditional Chinese motifs, but also contemporary designs. Egg tarts and the new contemporary cookie tin series at Tong Heng (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p73) are the perfect treat for visitors with a sweet tooth. For tea connoisseurs, a visit to one of Singapore's oldest tea merchants, Pek Sin Choon along Mosque Street is a definite must. Visitors who are interested to learn about Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM) should stop by the Eu Yan Sang (see Local Shopping, p153) flagship store on South Bridge Road. It stocks a variety of health and wellness products, including medicinal herbs, herbal teas, pre-mixed soup packets and medicated ointments. On Ann Siang Road nearby, visitors who love fashion can step into innitbangkok (www.innitbangkok.com) and browse the collection of fashion merchandise.

Kampong Glam

The historic Arab Street (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p74), which lies between Victoria Street and Beach Road in Singapore's Kampong Glam district (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p74), is known for its well-preserved shophouses selling all manner of textiles and carpets. Local dressmakers still come here to pick up lace, silks and batik (traditional Indonesian fabric) sold by the yard or metre from shops like Molkan Fabrics (www.molkanfabrics.com) and Collezione La Prima. For modern batik designs, visit stores such as Ozel (www.ozel.com.sg) and utopia Apparels (www.utopiaapparels.com). Today, an array of cafés and concept stores, such as All Things Delicious (www.allthingsdelicious.sg), Scene Shang (shop.sceneshang.com) and bespoke perfume-maker Sifr Aromatics (www.sifr.sg), can also be found alongside the textile and carpet shops. Just off Arab Street is Haji Lane, a vibrant alley covered with colourful street art. Shop for home accessories and fashion pieces at the Salad Shop (www.facebook.com/saladshophajilane), bespoke jewellery and apparel at SSFW (www.ssfw.com.sg) and edgy menswear at Sup Clothing (www.facebook.com/supclothing/). Visitors looking for unique lifestyle products can check out the numerous pop-up shops at So Gelam Market—a kampung-style (villages) weekend street market held monthly in Kampong Glam.

Katong and Joo Chiat

Visitors will find traditional shophouses alongside chic yoga studios and traditional coffee shops beside hip cafés that crank out cold-brewed coffees in the Katong and Joo Chiat neighbourhood (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p76). Visit quaint Peranakan (Straits-born people of Chinese and Malay/Indonesian heritage) boutique Rumah Bebe (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p77) to pick up exquisite fabrics and embroidered pouches, and then head over to Cat Socrates (www.catsocrates.wixsite.com/catsocrates). This charming shop, founded by Hellen Jiang, specialises in Singaporean literature and quirky local-inspired bric-a-brac—think cushions that resemble tutu kueh (steamed cakes with crushed peanut or grated coconut filling), feline-related merchandise and Singlish (a colloquial form of English; see Know Singapore, p12) postcards. Take a trip down to MOX (www.themox.co), a co-creative working space, for fresh finds by young entrepreneurs. Visitors to MOX can take home contemporary renditions of traditional clothing from modern batik (traditional Indonesian fabric) fashion brand Baju by Oniatta (www.facebook.com/bajubyoniatta) and modern cheongsam (a body-hugging traditional Chinese dress) brand Studio HHFZ (www.facebook.com/studio.hhfz). Lovers of timeless fashion from the 1950s to 1990s should head to A Vintage Tale (www.avintagetale.com), a concept store showcasing carefully curated collections from across the globe. For specialty coffee, travellers can pop by Choice Cuts Goods + Coffee (www.facebook.com/choicecutsgoods) for a cuppa and enjoy it while browsing vinyl records in a relaxed atmosphere.

Little India

A wide variety of shops like goldsmiths and traditional Indian beauty parlours can be found along Serangoon Road, the main thoroughfare of Singapore's Little India district (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p77). On the corner of Serangoon Road and Bukit Timah Road is Tekka Centre (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p79), which houses a wet market and food centre on level 1 and retails traditional Indian clothing, textiles and footwear, on the upper floor. Located off Serangoon Road is one of Singapore's most famous shopping centres: Mustafa Centre (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p79). Open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, this emporium sells an incredibly wide range of products—from sportswear, electronics to groceries and jewellery—plus it has a 24-hour pharmacy. In the heart of Little India, Jothi Store & Flower Shop (www.jothi.com.sg) is worth a visit to catch whiffs of fragrant jasmine garlands and peruse traditional Indian beauty products, homeware and kitchen ware. After exploring the area, bring home Little India-inspired fabrics, cushion covers and more from Onlewo's Jalan Besar outlet nearby (see Shopping, Top Ten Souvenirs, p140).

Be immersed in colourful cultural shops and bring home traditional Indian memorabilia.

ELYN WONG

Founder of Stolen

"With Stolen, it is always about opening minds and celebrating cross disciplinary creations. Fashion can be more than just a dress."

A Visual Communications graduate and former Creative Group Head at Ogilvy & Mather, Elyn Wong's journey into fashion in 2007 was an unconventional one. Her designs takes cue from architecture and installation art—things Elyn also has passion for. This adaptation has resulted in lines of clothing featuring a structured rather than decorative form. More than a clothing label, Elyn's brand is an ode to feminine allure in all its strength and fragility.

Ying The Label

It was Ying's passion for painting and desire to transform her paintings to prints and clothing that spurred her to create Ying The Label. With the vision to story-tell through her art, Ying aims to bring more vibrancy and colour into the Singaporean fashion scene. Running on the philosophy that "less is more, odd is beautiful", Ying The Label creates dresses, tops, skirts and pants with designs that are instinctive, arty and one-of-a-kind.

Fossa Chocolate

Founded by a trio of chocolate lovers, Fossa Chocolate has since earned the accolade of being Singapore's first International Chocolate Awards winner. Its confections and chocolates are handcrafted at their workshop in Singapore and instead of using semi-finished products like cocoa butter, Fossa chooses to make its chocolate from scratch. Bestsellers include Fossa's local flavour range which features flavours like Chilli Peanut Praline, which is inspired by local satay (grilled meat skewers) sauce and Nanyang Kaya (a traditional jam made from coconut and eggs). Made with sleek packaging and pure dedication, Fossa's chocolates are the perfect gift for making a classy impression.

Home's Favourite

A well-loved brand among locals, Home's Favourite has been baking handmade pastries and cookies since 1997. The brand whips up traditional treats such as pineapple tarts and mooncakes (sweet pastry traditionally eaten during Mid-Autumn Festival) while incorporating unique flavours into these baked goods. Try the laksa (spicy coconut milk-based noodle soup), lychee and hae bee hiam (dried shrimp and spicy sambal) cookies, and best sellers like the snow skin durian (a spiky tropical fruit that is unique to Southeast Asia) mooncake. For a more memorable souvenir, take home Home's Favourite Tingkat sets—cookies packaged in colourful tingkats, metal lunch boxes widely used in Southeast Asia in the past.

Old Seng Choong

Founded by renowned local pastry chef Daniel Tay, Old Seng Choong offers traditional bakes and cakes to celebrate every joyous occasion. Bringing back heritage recipes and nostalgic local flavours of Singapore, Old Seng Choong offers a wide range of homemade cookies, pies, butter cakes and other seasonal festive items that preserves the food memories of the older generation. Best-selling cookie flavours include cereal prawn, smokey bak kwa (barbecued meat slices), laksa (spicy coconut milk-based noodle soup) and satay (grilled meat skewers). Old Seng Choong has also crafted a special series of cookies—Singapore Stars, which features special collaboration with local personalities & landmarks. The brand was created as a tribute to Daniel's father, a baker and confectioner himself for over 30 years. It is named after the well-loved Seng Choong Confectionery, which was established in 1965 and run by Daniel's parents until its closure in 1996. Travellers will recognise The Red House in Katong & Joo Chiat (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic District, p76), the historical landmark that housed Seng Choong Confectionery before its closure.

DANIEL TAY

Founder of Old Seng Choong

“Our aim is to savour Singapore's delicacies in every bite. Old Seng Choong offers more than just cookies, we embody local heritage.”

Daniel Tay has come a long way in his journey as a homegrown pastry chef and entrepreneur. His latest business venture, Old Seng Choong is named after his father's now-defunct confectionery shop that was first opened in 1965. In 1995, he converted the shop into the retail arm of his wholesale bakery business. The move proved to be unsuccessful and the business fell into debt. In spite of the happenings, Daniel persevered, took on the role of a pastry chef at Les Amis (see Eat & Drink, Celebrity Fine Dining, p120) and sold home-baked cheesecakes to pay off the debts. Debt-free within two years, he opened Baker's Inn bakery which later evolved into patisserie-cafe chain Bakerzin, which he sold off in 2007. Following that, he opened a few other businesses, which includes the highly-requested Old Seng Choong.

Katong Walking Tour by Original Food Tours

Discover tastes of Singapore along heritage shophouses housing multi-ethnic eateries in Katong (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p76) on this 3.5-hour tour. Relish in Peranakan (Straits-born people of Chinese and Malay/Indonesian heritage) cuisine like nonya (Peranakan term for women) dumplings and dig into local hawker favourites like popiah (fresh spring roll with vegetables and assorted filling), curry puff, chicken rice, roti prata (South Indian flatbread) (see Eat & Drink, Local Favourites, p106 and p109 respectively), Teochew kueh (bite-sized snacks or desserts). Enjoy Katong laksa (spicy coconut milk-based noodle soup) from the famous 328 Katong Laksa, that bested celebrity chef Gordon Ramsay in a 2013 cooking showdown. Through this tour, visitors pick up not just souvenirs but basic Singlish (colourful slang that combines English and local dialects; see Know Singapore, p12) terms, a language commonly spoken by Singaporeans.

Red Clogs Down The Five Foot Way™ by Journeys

Under the glow of bright red lanterns, the shophouses that line the bustling five-foot-ways of Chinatown (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p70) are home to traditional teahouses and street hawkers where Foodies can sample a host of local dishes. Businesses sell everything from groceries to famous chilli crabs (see Eat & Drink, Local Favourites, p107). Visitors can stroll the streets, soak up the atmosphere and stop over at the traditional wet market in the neighbourhood to discover the ingredients used in Chinese cooking. Collectors can also pick up quirky souvenirs from the street stalls located around the district before snapping a selfie in front of a giant red clog (wooden footwear that was preferred in Singapore before World War II) located outside Chinatown Heritage Centre.

ROBIN LOH

Founder of Let's Go Tour

“I love it that I am in the business and capacity to create wonderful memories of Singapore for our guests.”

Let's Go Tour began from a simple inspiration—a sightseeing bike tour in Bangkok that gave a local's perspective of the bustling city. With that, Robin and his friend, Daniel, rolled up their sleeve and started planning and travelling around Singapore to recreate the bike tour. Each attraction on the routes they offer are carefully selected to curate a memorable journey for participants.

As the gateway to Southeast Asia, Singapore is the preferred homeport in the region for numerous cruise lines. Visitors can fly into the city-state and sail out from either the Marina Bay Cruise Centre Singapore (MBCCS) or Singapore Cruise Centre (SCC) @ HarbourFront, to explore neighbouring cities with minimal hassle.

Most international cruise lines such as Royal Caribbean International and Dream Cruises offer packages that depart from and return to Singapore, so travellers can use Singapore as their port to travel around the region. The following sample cruise itineraries are updated as of the time of publication and are subject to change.

For the most updated cruise itineraries and travel arrangements, travel agents or visitors should contact the respective cruise lines. It is also advisable to check the website of each cruise line for more cruise itineraries other than the ones that are listed here.

AIDA Cruises C

AIDA Cruises boasts over ten ships for passengers to choose from, with their newest ships being the AIDAstella, AIDAprima, AIDAperia and AIDAnova. From Singapore, passengers can travel to locations such as Hong Kong, Dubai, Indonesia, Vietnam and Australia. AIDA's ships come equipped with facilities such as an outdoor area for jogging and sports, yoga and fitness classes, and much more. The ships' dining options provide a unique experience for passengers. The fleet has in total 17 restaurants guests can taste a variety of cuisine from. With sophisticated furnishings, an extensive wine list and award-winning cuisines, Gourmet Restaurant Rossini provides guests with an elegant and cosy atmosphere to dine in. Passengers can also enjoy the cruise's extensive entertainment program which includes musicals, rock shows, live music bars, pool parties and comedy shows. For young children and teenagers, the Kids Club and Teens Club are sure to keep them entertained with fun themed workshops, multimedia games and more. Children under two years of age will get to travel for free on AIDA and children from two to 15 years of age will be able to travel for free during selected seasons.

H

CRUISE TRANSIT ITINERARIES

Depending on how much time cruise passengers have, here are some things they can do to experience a few highlights of the sunny island before they return onboard at Marina Bay Cruise Centre Singapore or the Singapore Cruise Centre. From amazing sights to culinary delights and new experiences, these itineraries bring visitors to different hotspots for a taste of what Singapore can offer. They also cater to a wide range of interests and are suitable for first-time visitors to Singapore.

General Itinerary 1: Marina Bay

Close to the Marina Bay Cruise Centre Singapore (MBCCS) is the Marina Bay district (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p84), where one of Singapore's most iconic attractions, Gardens by the Bay (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p63) can be found. Visitors can take a 22-minute walk on foot or a 15-minute bus ride to the attraction or alternatively arrive at their destination in less than ten minutes by car.

9am: Take a walk around Gardens by the Bay (Explore)

Start the morning by exploring the grounds of Gardens by the Bay (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p63) and admiring the view of the Marina Bay waterfront and skyline. Visitors will find a range of gardens featuring plants of different species as they enjoy their leisurely walk. Admission to the Outdoor Gardens, including the Supertree Grove and World of Plants, is free.

Visitors should not miss the Flower Dome and its spectacular flower field display or the 35-metre-tall waterfall at the Cloud Forest. Admission fees to these cooled conservatories apply.

Website: www.gardensbythebay.com.sg

12pm: Lunch at The Clifford Pier (Dine)

Located within the Fullerton Heritage precinct, The Clifford Pier restaurant at The Fullerton Bay Hotel occupies the space of what was once Singapore's main landing point for maritime traders and immigrants. The restaurant keeps the hawker food culture of the 1933 pier alive with dishes like soup kambing (mutton soup infused with spices) and char kway teow (stir-fried rice noodles in dark soya sauce).

CHIJMES (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p82) boasts of an array of venues available for booking in the heart of Singapore’s Central Business District (CBD). Notably, two of these spaces have been gazetted as National Monuments in 1990—the CHIJMES Hall, an exquisitely restored early Gothic-style 19th-century chapel with intricate design and detail, and the beautiful Alcove at Caldwell House, its neoclassical style design is one of the few surviving works of renowned architect, G.D Coleman. Both are suitable for weddings and corporate events. For a lush green setting accompanied by a stunning backdrop of the CHIJMES Hall, The Lawn offers flexibility in alfresco gatherings and sheltered events on a sprawling green.

Quick facts about CHIJMES:

- CHIJMES Hall can seat up to 300 pax
- The Lawn can accommodate up to 300 pax (standing)
- Alcove at Caldwell House can seat up to 100 pax

USEFUL INFORMATION FOR TRAVELLERS

When is the best time for travellers to visit Singapore?

Any time of the year is a good time to visit, but peak season for travel typically falls between December and June. Singapore's calendar of events is packed with exciting activities all year round (see Festivals & Events, p36).

Are there special rates for children and senior citizens to enter attractions and establishments?

It varies depending on the attraction or establishment. Rates for children generally apply to those between the ages of three and 12 (inclusive). Senior citizen rates generally apply to persons above the age of 60 or 65 (inclusive).

What can travellers do during festive holidays in Singapore?

Most shopping malls, tourist attractions and establishments are open during major public holidays, with the exception of the eve of Chinese New Year (CNY) (see Festivals & Events, p38), when some establishments may close earlier and remain closed on the first and second day of CNY. However, key attractions and some outlets in Singapore's ethnic districts are generally open during CNY.

What currency is used in Singapore, where can we exchange cash, and are credit cards widely used?

The Singapore dollar (S$) is the official currency of Singapore. Notes come in denominations of S$2, S$5, S$10, S$50, S$100, S$1,000 and S$10,000. Coins come in 5, 10, 20 and 50 cents and S$1. Foreign currencies can be exchanged at licensed moneychangers, which can be found across the city. Most banks handle travellers' cheques and foreign currency exchange. However, some banks don't handle foreign currency exchange on Saturdays. Credit cards are widely accepted, with the most common ones being American Express, Diners Club®, Mastercard® and Visa.

How wheelchair-friendly is Singapore? Can disabled travellers get around easily?

Singapore caters to the needs of elderly travellers, wheelchair users and people with hearing or visual impairment. All Mass Rapid Transit (MRT) stations are equipped with ramps, lifts and wheelchair-accessible toilets as well as two wheelchair-accessible carriages on each train. Most public buses are also wheelchair-friendly (look out for a blue wheelchair decal at the front of the bus).

Travelling by taxi is convenient too. Any foldable wheelchair can be stored in the taxi's boot at no additional charge. More information is available at www.VisitSingapore.com/travel-guide-tips/getting-around/accessibility

Destination Information

STB Websites

www.VisitSingapore.com

STB's destination website provides up-to-date information on Singapore's attractions, dining scene, events and festivals, stay options and other useful information.

www.stb.gov.sg

STB's corporate website provides information on projects done by the Board, the latest tourism news, market reports, research statistics and press releases. Other information available on the website include statutory acts on travel agents and hotels.

www.VisitSingapore.com/mice

The Meetings, Incentive Travel, Conventions & Exhibitions (MICE)-driven website offers practical information on planning events, industry news, pre- and post-conference tours, as well as supplier and venue listings.

Where can I find a list of licensed Singapore travel agents?

TRUST (Travel Related Users' System), the integrated Internet-based administration and information system, allows all licensed travel agents to refer to and update relevant corporate information online, such as the appointment and resignation of key personnel. TRUST also incorporates a public section where members of the public can get up-to-date information on licensed travel agents, access information on upcoming events and read new releases.

Where can I find a comprehensive list of halal restaurants/eateries in Singapore?

- www.halaltag.com
- www.muis.gov.sg/Halal/Halal-Certification/Certified-Eating-Establishments
- www.zabihah.com
- www.VisitSingapore.com/dining-drinks-singapore/halal-guide/ (see Eat & Drink, Halal Restaurants, p122)

What advice should be given to visitors in relation to local practices or cultural norms?

• Singapore is a cosmopolitan city and English is widely spoken, but the language close to the heart of every Singaporean is Singlish (see Know Singapore, p12). It's a colourful slang that combines English and local dialects.

• Travellers may notice packs of tissue paper on tables at hawker centres (see Eat & Drink, Hawker Centres, p129).

This is the Singaporean way of reserving a table while patrons are away to place their food orders. Refrain from picking up the pack of tissue and simply look for another table.

• Singaporeans queue for everything, so visitors can join the line and wait for their turn.

• Unless they are in a rush, visitors should always keep to the left when taking the escalator.

• Tipping is not necessary as most hotels and restaurants in Singapore impose a service charge of 10% on their goods and services provided. Most hotels and restaurants quote prices as "++", which denotes 10% service charge and 7% Goods and Services Tax (GST) on top of the total bill. Some restaurants may quote "+", which means they only impose either service charge or GST.

• The no-smoking law is enforced in most public places, including the outdoors. Travellers who need to light up should do so only in designated smoking areas, usually marked by a yellow box (see Travel Essentials, Legal Matters, p226).

ORCHARD ROAD PRECINCT NO SMOKING ZONE

Since 1 Jan 2019, all public areas within Orchard Road (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p85) have become a designated No Smoking Zone (NSZ). Designated Smoking Areas (DSAs) will be available at specified locations within the precinct. For more information, visit www.nea.gov.sg/ORNZ

Travel Essentials

NEED-TO-KNOW
INFORMATION
TRAVELLERS
ENJOY THEIR VISIT TO
SINGAPORE*Before Arrival*Visas and Customs

Most international visitors do not require a visa to enter Singapore. To be sure, check with the Immigration & Checkpoints Authority of Singapore (www.ica.gov.sg) for visa requirements. All visitors to Singapore must hold a passport or travel document that has a validity of at least 6 months. Immigration Officers will stamp a Visit Pass onto visitors' passports upon arrival and the period of stay will be indicated on the Visit Pass stamp.

To enjoy a more seamless travel experience to Singapore, from Jan 2020, the SG Arrival Card (SGAC) will be made available on the Visit Singapore Travel Guide App (in iOS and Android). This is a new e-service where visitors can now electronically submit their arrival cards—up to 14 days in advance before arrival in Singapore.

Dutiable Goods

Under Singapore laws, inbound travellers are required to declare and pay the duty and Goods and Services Tax (GST) to bring in dutiable and taxable goods if they exceed their duty-free concessions and GST relief. This is applicable whether the goods were purchased in Singapore or overseas:

- Intoxicating liquors (spirits, wine, beer, ale, stout, etc). Beverages and liquors consumed for health reasons, or used for cooking are dutiable if the alcoholic strength by volume exceeds 0.5% (eg. Shandy, bottled alcoholic cocktail drinks, Bénédictine D.O.M, Yomeishu and rice wine)
- Tobacco products, including cigarettes and cigars
- Motor vehicles, including motorised bicycles
- Petroleum products, including gasoline, petrol, motor fuel and automotive diesel fuel

All goods imported into Singapore are subject to 7% GST. Payment of Duties and GST can be made via the following payment modes:

- All major credit cards (Mastercard®, Visa and American Express), mobile wallets, NETS and Cashcard at the Singapore Customs Tax Payment Office
- Visa or Master credit cards on the Customs@SG Mobile and Web Application (credit card)

Duty-Free Concessions

Liquor Products

Travellers arriving in Singapore may enjoy duty-free concessions on liquor only if the following conditions are met:

- He/she is 18 years and above
- He/she has spent 48 hours or more outside Singapore immediately before arrival
- He/she did not arrive from Malaysia
- The liquor is for his/her own consumption
- The liquors are not prohibited from import into Singapore

Travellers are given duty-free concession for liquors on one of the following options:

Option	Spirits	Wine	Beer
A	1 Litre	1 Litre	-
B	1 Litre	-	1 Litre
C	-	1 Litre	1 Litre
D	-	2 Litre	-
E	-	-	2 Litre

Note:

- The above options also apply to liquors consumed for health reasons and used in cooking.
- Duty-free concessions are granted on liquor products purchased outside Singapore as well as those purchased at the duty-free retailer.
- Duty-free concessions are granted on liquor products for personal consumption only. It is an offence to sell or give them away.
- Travellers are required to pay taxes on liquor products exceeding their duty-free concessions and on goods carried for or on behalf of other people.
- There is no duty-free concession on liquor products for people arriving from Malaysia.
- If you are bringing in more than 10 litres of liquor products, a Customs permit would be required for clearance.

GST Relief

Travellers will be given GST relief on new articles, souvenirs, gifts and food products (excluding liquor and tobacco) brought into Singapore and intended for personal use up to the following values, depending on the number of hours spent away from Singapore:

Time spent away from Singapore	Value of goods granted GST relief
48 hours or more	S$500
Less than 48 hours	S$100

Travellers are required to pay GST only on the value of goods that exceeds their

Changi Airport

GST relief. Payment should be made at the Customs Tax Payment Office or via the Customs@SG Mobile & Web Application (credit card). Travellers should ensure receipts and invoices are on hand to facilitate payment. For more information on GST relief, visit www.customs.gov.sg

There is no GST relief or duty-free concession for cigarettes and tobacco products, or for motor spirits and diesel products in containers.

GST Refund

Tourists who have made a purchase of more than S$100 (including GST) at participating shops. They may accumulate up to three same-day invoices/receipts from retailers bearing the same GST registration number and shop name to meet this minimum purchase amount, may claim a refund on the 7% Goods and Services Tax (GST) paid on their purchases. Tourists can apply for a GST refund using the Electronic Tourist Refund self-help kiosks (eTRS kiosks) located at Changi Airport Departure Check-in Hall (before departure immigration for check-in items) and Departure Transit Lounge (after departure immigration for hand-carry items); and at Seletar Airport Immigration & Checkpoints Authority (ICA) duty office. Tourists can verify the details of their transactions by registering and logging into the eTRS e-Services at touristrefund.sg/en/index.page or via the "eTRS Singapore" app downloadable from Google Play or Apple App Store.

Currency

Travellers entering or leaving Singapore with currency (coins and printed notes) or bearer negotiable instruments (bill of exchange, cheque, promissory note, bearer bond, money order and postal order) with a total value exceeding S$20,000 (or its equivalent in a foreign currency) are required to complete the Physical Currency and Bearer Negotiable Instruments (CBNI) Report (Traveller) or NP727 form. These forms are available for download from the Singapore Police Force website or at Singapore checkpoints and police establishments. Completed forms are to be submitted at the Customs Red Channel upon arrival in Singapore and at the immigration counters on departure from Singapore. There are no restrictions to the type or amount of CBNI that travellers may take into or out of Singapore. Travellers are only required to report the amount exceeding the equivalent of S$20,000.

Prohibited Goods

The following are not allowed in Singapore:

- Chewing gum (excluding Health Sciences Authority approved oral dental and medicinal chewing gum)

CDs, DVDs, Films & Video Games

Animals, Birds, Fishes, Plants & their By-Products

Getting To and Leaving Singapore

By Air

Singapore Changi Airport, or simply Changi Airport, is consistently ranked as one of the best airports in the world. It serves over 100 airlines that fly to some 380 cities in about 100 countries and territories worldwide.

Beyond a transit point, Changi Airport (see Maps, Singapore Changi Airport, p234) is a tourist destination in itself. There are hotels, numerous shops and restaurants, tropical gardens, a cinema and a swimming pool plus other unique features in each terminal to make travelling an enjoyable experience. Its latest extension, Jewel Changi Airport (see Shopping, Malls, p142), is a majestic, ten-storey nexus with over 80 restaurants and global retail labels. Free Wi-Fi is available in both the public and transit areas of Changi Airport with #WiFi@Changi. Wheelchairs are also available for rental in all four terminals and Jewel Changi Airport (see Shopping, Malls, p142).

The airport's four terminals as well as Jewel Changi Airport, includes facilities to make travelling seamless, easy and convenient. For a complete list of the airport's facilities and services by terminals, please visit www.changiairport.com

Travellers who arrive at the airport early or have long layovers need not look far for ways to pass time. Changi Airport has plenty of activities within the transit areas that can make waiting for a flight a pleasant experience.

Transit time: 2–3 hours

Save on shopping.

At Changi Airport, travellers can purchase goods at competitive prices. Get deals on beauty products at Cosmetics & Perfumes by The Shilla Duty Free (Terminal 1–4) and Electronics & Computers by Sprint-Cass (Terminal 1–3).

Collect local souvenirs.

Terminal 2 has shops that are local favourites, such as Bee Cheng Hiang (see Shopping, Top Ten Souvenirs, p138), Bengawan Solo (see Shopping, Local Shopping, p150) and TWG Tea Boutique. Visitors can purchase snacks from these shops or choose one of the soft toys from the Singapore Zoo shop to take home as a souvenir.

Transit time: 4–5 hours

Explore a nature trail.

Changi Airport has fabulous green spaces for travellers to connect with nature: Cactus Garden (Terminal 1), Sunflower Garden (Terminal 2), Butterfly Garden (Terminal 3), Steel in Bloom (Terminal 4) and Canopy Park (Jewel Changi Airport; See Attractions, Adventures & Rides, p49).

Be entertained.

Catch the latest blockbusters for free at 24-hour movie theatres in Terminals 2 and 3. Or gear up for Xbox action at the gaming consoles within Terminal 2's Entertainment Deck.

Refresh and relax. For travellers who want to freshen up or be pampered with a massage, head to a wellness salon or spa such as Airport Wellness Oasis (Terminal 1), TranSpa (Terminal 2), Be Relaxed (Terminal 3) or Ning Foot & Back Spa (Jewel Changi Airport).

Travellers can also enjoy a swim at the rooftop pool (Terminal 1, transit area) or get some shut-eye at the Snooze Lounge (Terminal 1–4), a free-to-use rest area with lounge chairs.

Transit time: More than 5 hours

Explore Singapore.

Travellers with at least five hours to spare, can sign up for a free tour around Singapore. The Heritage and City Sights Tours take 2.5 hours each. The Heritage Tour brings travellers around Singapore's vibrant ethnic precincts—Chinatown, Little India, Kampong Glam (see Neighbourhoods, Ethnic Districts, p74). The last tour timing is from 4 to 6.30pm. The City Sights Tour takes place in the evenings from 6pm onwards and will give visitors a look at Singapore's modern and futuristic side with great views of the Singapore Flyer, Marina Bay Sands® and Gardens by the Bay (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p63). Visitors can register for the tours at registration booths located at the transit area of Terminals 2 and 3. Visitors from other terminals can register for tours at the nearest Information Counter. Passport, boarding passes and entry visa (if applicable) are required to register for the tours. For more information, visit www.changiairport.com

Clarke Quay

By Sea

Singapore is one of the world's busiest cruise centres. Cruise operators from around the world—offering luxury, premium and contemporary excursions—dock at one of the city's two terminals, providing visitors from around the region with the option of travelling to Singapore by ferry.

Cruise Terminals

Marina Bay Cruise Centre Singapore

Marina Bay Cruise Centre Singapore (MBCCS), Singapore's second cruise terminal, was built to accommodate new-generation mega cruise vessels. The two-berth cruise facility can accommodate up to 6,800 passengers at any given time. The terminal features a spacious arrival and departure hall, as well as a large ground transportation area to ensure a smooth and seamless experience for passengers.

Its waterfront location at Marina Bay (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p84) makes it convenient for passengers to enjoy attractions in the area such as Gardens by the Bay (see Attractions, Nature & Parks, p63), Esplanade – Theatres on the Bay (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p84) and Marina Bay Sands®.

CruiseFly service: Arriving cruise passengers flying off on the same day may utilise the region's first sea-to-air baggage transfer service. The service allows passengers to check-in, deposit their bags and collect their boarding passes at the cruise terminal. Airlines currently available for CruiseFly are: Singapore Airlines, SilkAir, Air China, China Eastern, China Southern, Qantas, Scoot, Eva Airways and Turkish Airlines.

Other facilities within MBCCS include a ground transfer desk, left luggage counter, visitor centre, retail shops and restaurants. Free Wi-Fi is available throughout the premises.

Address: 61 Marina Coastal Drive
Website: www.mbccs.com.sg

Connectivity:

- 16 min (6.7km) to Orchard Road (timing might vary according to peak traffic hours)
- 17 min (18.7km) to Changi Airport (timing might vary according to peak traffic hours)

Transport:

- Nearest MRT: Marina South Pier Station

SCC@HarbourFront

Singapore Cruise Centre (SCC)@HarbourFront has two terminals: the International Passenger Terminal (IPT) and the Regional Ferry Terminal (RFT), both of which are used by more than 4.5 million cruise and ferry passengers each year. The IPT, serving over one million cruise passengers from over 30 cruise lines each year, was refurbished in 2011 for a more spacious and comfortable passenger experience. Located next to HarbourFront Centre and VivoCity (see Shopping, Malls, p144), SCC@HarbourFront is well-placed for visitors to explore Sentosa Island (see Neighbourhoods, Lifestyle Precincts, p88), Asia's favourite playground, and Mount Faber, one of Singapore's best-loved nature parks.

There are food and beverage options at IPT, plus amenities such as left luggage services, CIP Lounge services and free Wi-Fi connections. Ship crew also get their own services such as an Internet café and convenience shop within the restricted area.

The RFT has six berths to serve regional destinations in the south and west of Singapore. The destinations include:

- Batam Centre, Batam
- Harbour Bay, Batam
- Nongsapura, Batam
- Sekupang, Batam
- Tanjung Balai, Karimun
- Telok Senimba (Waterfront City), Batam

Address: 1 Maritime Square

Website: www.singaporecruise.com.sg

Connectivity:

- 18 min (6.6km) to Orchard Road (timing might vary according to peak traffic hours)
- 22 min (23.5km) to Changi Airport (timing might vary according to peak traffic hours)

Transport:

- Nearest MRT: HarbourFront Station
- HarbourFront Bus Interchange for connections to various parts of Singapore

Ferry Terminals SCC@Tanah Merah

The Tanah Merah Ferry Terminal has four berths serving regional ferries that travel to destinations to the south and east of Singapore, including:

- Batam Centre, Batam
- Bintan Lagoon, Bintan
- Nongsapura, Batam
- Pulau Lobam, Bintan
- Tanjung Pinang, Bintan
- Telok Sebong (Bintan Resorts), Bintan

Address: 50 Tanah Merah Ferry Road

Website: www.singaporecruise.com.sg

Changi Point Ferry Terminal

Changi Point Ferry Terminal is a departing point to Pulau Ubin (Singapore) and Pengerang (Malaysia). Bumboats to Pulau Ubin carry a maximum of 12 people per boat. The earliest bumboat departs at 7am on weekends and the last bumboat service is around 4pm. The schedule varies on weekdays.

By Land Tuas Checkpoint

Travelling to and from Malaysia through this checkpoint usually takes less time due to smoother traffic in both directions. However, during festive periods, public holidays and long weekends, the traffic is expected to be heavier. Websites such as One Motoring (www.onemotoring.com.sg) provide traffic updates and real-time footage from traffic cameras of conditions on the road.

Address: 501 Jalan Ahmad Ibrahim

Woodlands Checkpoint

The Woodlands Checkpoint is at the Singapore end of the Causeway joining Singapore and Malaysia. The 1,056m causeway links the city of Johor Bahru in Malaysia to the town of Woodlands in Singapore. Traffic is expected to be heavy during festival periods, public holidays and long weekends. Websites such as One Motoring (www.onemotoring.com.sg) provide traffic updates and real-time footage from traffic cameras of conditions on the road.

Address: 21 Woodlands Crossing

Website: www.ica.gov.sg

Woodlands Train Checkpoint

There is also a railway station and border checkpoint in Woodlands, Singapore. The railway is operated by Malaysian operator Keretapi Tanah Melayu Berhad (KTM). Since 2011, the Woodlands Train Checkpoint has been the southern terminus of the KTM Intercity service.

Travellers who do not want to drive or take the coach to and from Singapore and Malaysia have the option of using the KTM-run shuttle train service, KTM Shuttle Tebrau. The ride from Woodlands Train Checkpoint to Johor Bahru (JB Sentral) via the shuttle service takes just five minutes.

Passengers departing from Singapore have to clear Singapore immigration and Malaysian customs and immigration at the Woodlands Train Checkpoint before boarding the train for Malaysia. Singapore-bound passengers, meanwhile, clear Malaysian immigration at JB Sentral railway station.

Note: Tickets for the shuttle can be purchased one month in advance via:

- KTM's ticketing website (ticket.ktmb.com.my); max six tickets can be purchased in one transaction.
- By downloading Mobile application (KTMB Mob Ticket); max two tickets can be purchased in one transaction.
- ETS/Intercity Counters stations.

The Eastern and Oriental Express luxury train also has its terminus at Woodlands Train Checkpoint.

Address: 11 Woodlands Crossing

Connectivity

There are different ways to stay in touch with loved ones and enjoy wireless connectivity.

Prepaid SIM cards: The three main telephone companies (telcos) in Singapore—M1, Singtel and StarHub—offer a wide variety of packages with bundles for local and international calls, SMSes and varying amounts of local mobile data. Prepaid SIM cards may be purchased at local convenience stores such as 7-Eleven and Cheers, currency exchange counters and telco retail counters. Travellers need to present their passport for registration when purchasing a prepaid SIM card.

Pocket Wi-Fi: Pocket Wi-Fi are available for rent at Changi Recommends counters which can be found in all four terminals at Changi Airport and Seletar Airport. Devices can be dropped off at these counters just before departure. There are other pocket Wi-Fi rental companies available in Singapore such as Y5 Buddy (www.y5buddy.sg) located at Tanjong Pagar or Klook (www.klook.com) located at various locations around Singapore.

Free Public Wi-Fi: Most restaurants, cafés and shopping malls in Singapore have their own Wi-Fi networks. The service is usually displayed prominently for customers, but do feel free to enquire directly or at the malls' information counters for Wi-Fi access.

Wireless@SG: A free public Wi-Fi service across Singapore; with hotspots available at many locations, including malls, museums, MRT stations, Changi Airport and Sentosa Island. Wherever this network is available, there will be a Wireless@SG decal on display. Travellers can look for the SSID Wireless@SG on their mobile devices. To enjoy the free Wi-Fi privilege, travellers must register for an account using their foreign mobile number at any Wireless@SG hotspot. Login details will be received through SMS. Overseas charges may apply.

Note: From 1 April 2017, all three telcos—M1, Singtel and StarHub—have ceased the provision of the 2G network in Singapore. Travellers are advised to bring along a 3G/4G mobile phone when visiting Singapore or they may purchase a prepaid card on arrival.

Electricity and power plugs: Singapore uses 230volts AC (50 cycles). Power plugs with three square pins are commonly used here.

Health

Singapore's healthcare system is regarded as one of the best in the world. The country's extensive network of public and private hospitals caters to different needs.

Pharmacies can easily be found across the island, with pharmacists able to provide professional advice on minor ailments.

Food and drink: Eating at food centres and hawker stalls is safe as Singapore maintains a reasonably high standard for food hygiene. Tap water throughout the island is also safe for general consumption.

Vaccinations: Prior to the trip, it is advisable for travellers to make an appointment with a doctor to determine if vaccination is required.

Other health risks: Dengue fever is a cause for concern in many countries in Southeast Asia, including Singapore. Transmitted through the bite of the Aedes mosquito, dengue may present symptoms that include a rash, fever, headaches and pain in muscles and joints. While there is currently no vaccine available for dengue, travellers can take steps to protect themselves against mosquito bites by applying mosquito repellent or sticking mosquito patches.

Getting Around Singapore

With an efficient, integrated and clean public transport system, Singapore has made it convenient for tourists to get to any part of the city. Tourists can also now use their Mastercard® and Visa contactless bank cards issued outside of Singapore for the payment of public transport fares (for travel by train and bus) in Singapore. Foreign admin fee applies, please visit TransLink's SimplyGo website (simplygo.transitlink.com.sg) for more information.

By Train

Singapore's Mass Rapid Transit (MRT) system is probably the most efficient way of getting around the city. The extensive rail network covers most parts of the island, making Singapore's key attractions easily accessible as they are within walking distance from most MRT stations. All stations and trains are also accessible to families with strollers, wheelchair users and the visually impaired.

Travellers can buy tickets for single trips, but it may be more cost efficient to buy a Singapore Tourist Pass, a special stored-value card that allows unlimited travel on trains and buses for one day (S$10), two days (S$16) or three days (S$20). Cards may be bought at the following MRT stations: Ang Mo Kio, Bayfront, Bugis, Changi Airport, Chinatown, City Hall, Farrer Park, HarbourFront, Jurong

East, Kranji, Lavender, Orchard, Raffles Place, Somerset, Tanjong Pagar and Woodlands. They are also available at the Automated STP Kiosks at Changi Airport MRT Station (Terminal 2 and 3) near the Transitlink Ticket Office.

For a map of MRT lines and stations, visit www.transitlink.com.sg

By Bus

Travelling by bus may be the best and most economical way to explore the island's charming streets. It is also easy to travel across the island as bus routes cover most of Singapore.

Bus fares can be paid either by coins (check the distance fare board at the bus stop or ask the bus captain); an EZ-Link stored-value card; or a Singapore Tourist Pass, which is tapped on the card reader next to the driver when boarding. Travellers must tap the same card again when they alight. Buses in Singapore are air-conditioned, providing travellers with some respite from the outdoor heat.

By Taxi

For travelling door-to-door, nothing beats a taxi. Taxis in Singapore are metered, but there are surcharges depending on when, where and which taxi operator is used. Travellers can hail a cab on the streets or at designated taxi stands.

Taxi booking: Standard booking fees may range from S$3.20 to S$3.90 depending on taxi operator, the type of vehicle and peak/off-peak hours. For advance bookings of at least half an hour, there will be an S$6.50 to S$8.00 surcharge.

Legal Matters

Drug laws

Singapore has some of the strictest laws on drug-related offences in the world. The main legislation for drug offences—Misuse of Drugs Act (MDA)—punishes offenders for trafficking, manufacturing, importation or exportation, possession and consumption of even small amounts of illegal drugs. Under the law, the prescribed penalties for possession of small amounts range from fines of up to S$20,000 to a maximum of ten years in prison, or both. The law also prescribes execution if a person is found guilty of trafficking or carrying large amounts of certain drugs. Under Singapore law, the burden of proof lies with the defendant and not the government.

Liquor laws

Under the Liquor Control (Supply and Consumption) Act, drinking of liquor is banned in all public spaces from 10.30pm to 7am. Shops are not allowed to sell takeaway liquor during this period. However, travellers may drink in licensed places such as restaurants, bars and cafés, in private homes and at outdoor events that have obtained the requisite permits.

Those holding private get-togethers in public places will need a permit if they want to drink after 10.30pm. Those who have obtained a Barbecue Permit from the National Parks Board do not require a separate Consumption Permit to consume alcohol during the validity of the Barbecue Permit.

In Geylang and Little India, which are designated Liquor Control Zones, public drinking is banned from 7am on Saturdays to 7am on Mondays. The ban also takes effect at 7pm on the eve of a public holiday to 7am after the holiday. Shops within these two areas are not allowed to sell takeaway alcohol from 7pm on weekends, the eve of a public holiday and on the public holiday itself.

Those found guilty of drinking after 10.30pm in public places are liable to a fine of up to S$1,000. A repeat offender may face a jail term of up to three months, as well as a fine of up to S$2,000. For a similar offence within the Liquor Control Zone, the offender will face 1.5 times the penalty.

Overstaying

Visitors who overstay more than 90 days or are guilty of illegal entry into Singapore may face a jail term of up to six months and a minimum of three strokes of the cane. In lieu of the cane, certain offenders (including women and those of an age not punishable by cane) may be fined a maximum of S$6,000.

Safety

Singapore is one of the safest countries in the world, with one of the world's lowest crime rates. Even though violent criminal activity is rare, travellers are advised to take the necessary precautions as a form of prevention.

Smoking

Smoking is not allowed in all air-conditioned places such as malls and eateries. Visitors who wish to smoke may look out for areas demarcated by yellow lines designated for smoking.

List of areas where smoking is generally allowed:

- Approved smoking rooms at entertainment outlets, offices and Changi Airport. Approved smoking corners at outdoor refreshment areas of food establishments
- Designated smoking areas
- Beaches
- Residential Homes
- Private vehicles, excluding private buses
- Open spaces in residential estates
- Open public spaces
- Open spaces in town centres
- Surface carparks
- Uncovered areas at the top of multi-storey carparks
- Uncovered walkways
- Vacant land

Note: Facilities or buildings in these areas and five metres from entrances to buildings still fall within the smoking ban. Visitors should also be mindful of any additional house rules or by-laws put in place by owners/managers of premises against smoking in their premises. Refer to p209 for more information about Designated Smoking Areas (DSA) within Orchard Road.

Touting

Singapore has strict laws on touting. Touting is defined as persistently soliciting business from another person in a manner as to cause annoyance. Those who are found guilty of touting may be subjected to a fine ranging from S$1,000 to S$5,000, up to six months in prison, or both. Repeat offenders will be fined between S$2,000 to S$10,000, or face imprisonment for up to a year, or both.

Tipping

There is a 10% service charge added by most restaurants and hotels. While it is not usual practice to tip in Singapore, tips are welcomed and encouraged if travellers experience good service during their visit.

Unmanned Aircraft

In Singapore, any unmanned aircraft, with a total weight of above 250 grams must be registered before it can be operated. Other permits and requirements may also apply. Visit www.caas.gov.sg/flyitsafe to find out more.

Cai Yinzhou

Tour Guide & Founder of Geylang Adventures

As an idealistic urban explorer and tour guide, Cai Yinzhou has channelled his idealism into activism through social initiatives. In 2013, he founded Geylang Adventures, a local community group that sets out to unpack social issues through sightseeing. Geylang Adventures aims to break down social barriers and make Singapore a more gracious society. The group regularly brings visitors and locals through the busy streets and hidden back alleys of Geylang to tell them stories of the colourful neighbourhood. It also recognises the efforts migrant workers have made in the society today and seeks to create opportunities for interaction with them.

Travellers to the Geylang district will be able to find heritage shophouses and diverse places of worship along its meandering lanes. Its urban landscape also comprises durian stalls, modern barbershop The Panic Room (www.thepanicroom.com.sg) and Eng Tiang Huat Chinese Cultural Shop (www.facebook.com/chineseculturalshop), where traditional Chinese opera instruments and costumes are available for sale.

J.B. Ah Meng Restaurant

"I used to study at the back alley of their restaurant's old location. When things got busy, I would help them to take orders and serve food. I've made friends with many celebrities and chefs who come here for supper!"

02

Old Airport Road Food Centre

"It is one of the top recommended hawker places in Singapore to find a wide variety of good local dishes. My personal recommendations include J & J Special Beef Noodle, Lao Fu Zi Fried Kway Teow and Nam Sing Hokkien Fried Mee."

03

Park Connector Network

"I enjoy cycling along the Park Connector Network that runs from the Geylang neighbourhood to the Marina Bay district. It is very convenient and during the night, it is well-lit and cooling. Another plus point is the scenic view that can be enjoyed from the route."

04

Tanjong Beach

"I used to study on the sandy beach during my schooling days. The peaceful environment makes it both conducive for studying and for jogging. On top of that, there are lifeguards on duty to ensure safety and lockers nearby to secure your belongings in."

05

Pulau Ubin

"There are several camping sites on Pulau Ubin island where people can enjoy tent pitching and a night out in the nature. It is my place of choice to be close to nature and get away from the hustle and bustle of the city life."

Explorer

Once an inquisitive young boy set on having an adventurous childhood, Cai Yinzhou has since brought his passion for exploration into what he does today as an urban explorer and tour guide. Follow his footsteps as he leads the way to places of interest and natural spaces that he holds close to his heart on the sunny island.

01

The Armenian Church

"George Coleman was one of Singapore's first architects, and the Armenian Church is one of his few remaining masterpieces. As Singapore's oldest Christian church, it holds a special place in history. Whenever I visit, I feel the love that George put into this gem."

Explorer

When she first arrived in Singapore as a young girl back in 1963, Jane Iyer fell in love with what she saw and experienced. Having called the island home for close to two decades, she is a passionate ambassador of Singapore and is particularly keen on heritage and history. Discover the heritage gems hidden within the contemporary city while visiting Jane's top picks of Singapore's heritage spots.

02

Yip Yew Chong's Street Murals

"I find that mural artist Yip Yew Chong captures the heart and soul of 'old' Singapore in the nostalgic murals he has painted on the walls of buildings in heritage neighbourhoods across Singapore."

03

Emerald Hill

"Just a stone's throw from Orchard Road's bustle, Emerald Hill is another world. I first encountered this enclave with its delightful architecture some 25 years ago on a business trip, never dreaming that five years later I would live there!"

04

Chesed-El Synagogue

"The beautiful Chesed-El Synagogue in Oxley Rise is a testament to one of our small but important ethnic and religious groups, the Jewish community. Visiting this temple and chatting with its personable rabbi is always a treat."

05

Colonial Black & White Houses

"I love the gorgeous colonial heritage homes, colloquially known as black and whites, that dot the Alexandra Park district. The area's historical background is fascinating—from the Sepoy Mutiny of 1915 through the WWII years to present-day Hort Park."

Jereme Leung

MasterChef of 藝yì by Jereme Leung

One of the most influential chefs in the modern Chinese culinary scene, Singaporean chef Jereme Leung started his career at a tender age of 13. Working his way from the ground up in Hong Kong, he strived to perfect the art of Chinese cooking in the form of dim sum (bite-sized portions of food served in steamer baskets of small plates), Chinese barbecue, wok-cooking and knife work.

Having worked in the most prestigious hotels in Southeast Asia and travelled around various regions of China, Jereme has extensive experience and exposure to different types of cuisine. He now owns over 9 restaurants worldwide, 藝yì by Jereme Leung being the first in Singapore and his long-awaited homecoming at the newly renovated Raffles Hotel Singapore.

Mansor D'Cafe

"Whenever my schedule allows, I will head to the fourth floor of Far East Plaza for some fragrant nasi padang (steamed rice served with various pre-cooked dishes) at this small nondescript stall."

02

Golden Mile Complex

"Singapore is a melting pot of cultures with so much diversity in its food scene. When sourcing for new inspiration, I enjoy visiting different places for different ingredients. One such place is Golden Mile Complex where you can find an excellent selection of Thai spices and condiments."

03

Hong Lim Food Centre

"I love food from well-loved hawker stalls in Singapore. One of my choices for comfort food is a piping bowl of savoury prawn noodles from Hoe Lee Prawn Mee at Hong Lim Food Centre. With each bite, I feel as if I am reliving my teenage memories."

04

Civic District

"During my days off, I enjoy appreciating art and architecture in the Civic District. Museums that I would usually be found at are National Museum of Singapore at Stamford Road, National Gallery Singapore at St Andrew's Road and Asian Civilization Museum at Empress Place."

Foodie

Singaporean chef Jereme Leung has decades of culinary mastery under his belt. His dishes celebrate culinary tradition and craftsmanship and captures the essence of provincial ethnic cuisines. Join him on a gastronomic adventure to discover places of inspiration and mouth-watering dishes.

Jerrold Khoo

Bar Manager of Jigger & Pony

ABOUT

Jerrold Khoo

Bar Manager of Jigger & Pony

Jerrold first joined the home of creative cocktails, Jigger & Pony in 2013. The cocktail bar's strong focus on craft matched his personal dedication to craft and he soon rose from a Bartender to a Principal Bartender then the Group Operations Manager in a span of five years.

Known for his earnest commitment to share knowledge and coach the newcomers, it is also Jerrold's personal mantra that every customer must leave happier than when they came in, no matter how bad or busy his day is.

He also clinched 4th in the prestigious Diageo World Class Competition Singapore 2017, and champion in 2018. Despite his accolades, Jerrold is known for his personal mantra to bring joy to his guests and commitment to impart his knowledge to up-and-coming bartenders in Jigger & Pony.

01

Junior The Pocket Bar

"One of my favourite bars is Junior, a cosy backroom bar tucked away in an alley along Tanjong Pagar Road. It offers a rotating concept and menu every six months that visitors can look forward to."

Socialiser

Champion of the prestigious Diageo World Class Competition Singapore 2018, Jerrold Khoo of Jigger & Pony has come a long way in his love for making drinks. He first dabbled in making drinks in Starbucks before striving to be promoted into the craft that captivated him—bartending. One can say the rest was history. Take a trip to discover the places that inspire Jerrold in his passion of bartending.

02

Holland Village

"In my line of work, we must continue to innovate. For flavour inspirations, I seek out my favourite dessert bars like Sunday Folks and 2am:dessertbar in the hip Holland Village neighbourhood or Pantler along Telok Ayer street."

03

Mustafa

"To get regional and some cultural influence, I visit Mustafa and Golden Mile. The rich diversity in these places enables me to be bold in creating drinks that surprise and yet allow my guests to find comfort."

04

Maxwell Food Centre

"After work, I always look for something to warm my belly. My usual haunt will be Maxwell Food Centre for Teochew mui which is traditional Chinese plain rice porridge served with a range of small dishes. It reminds me of my grandmother's cooking during my childhood days."

Kyra Poh

Singapore Indoor Skydiving Champion

Kyra Poh

Indoor Skydiving World Cup Champion

Kyra Poh may be young, but she has achieved successes her peers may not have even fathomed—all while still giving her best in her studies. Fuelled by passion and perseverance, the indoor skydiving champion has accumulated many hours of training to perfect her airborne manoeuvres. She was first captured by the limitless potential of indoor skydiving at the tender age of eight before being fully immersed in the thrilling sport.

In 2016, Kyra came in first at the Indoor Skydiving World Cup and just a month later, bagged two gold medals at the Wind Games 2017, earning the title of World's Fastest Flyer. She is also the record-holder for the greatest number of backward somersaults done in a wind tunnel. Looking forward, Kyra hopes to continue expanding her horizons and experience all that indoor skydiving has to offer.

East Coast Lagoon Food Village

"Our local food is one of the most unique aspects of our country. I often travel overseas for competitions, and I always miss it. Once home, I would usually head to East Coast Lagoon Food Village to feast on chicken wings or grilled garlic bamboo clams."

Action Seeker

Indoor skydiving champion Kyra Poh is highly acclaimed, but behind the many accolades and awards, is simply a burning passion to fly. From her initial dream of being an astronaut, she now dreams to fly in all the different tunnels around the world. Check out what Kyra does during her free time when she's not riding winds at 230 km/h.

02

Pulau Ubin

"Another activity that I enjoy doing very much is kayaking. My favourite place to kayak at is the waterfront around Pulau Ubin with a rented kayak from Kayakasia."

03

Punggol Marina

"Wakeboarding is my latest interest. Whenever I have days off from training and competitions, I will be found on a board, pulled by a boat and launching off waves at Punggol Marina."

04

iFly Singapore

"Whenever I am feeling stressed with school, or I just need time to unwind and relax, somehow, I will find my way to iFly Singapore in Sentosa. Being able to be in the wind sets my spirit free, and I feel like I am in my own world."

Goh Ling Ling

Designer & Founder of LINGWU

ABOUT

Goh Ling Ling

Designer & Founder of LINGWU

As a young girl, Ling Ling was inspired by her mother's work in garment manufacturing during the 1970s. In 1999, she started LINGWU, a luxury handbag label for the modern, independent woman. The label then garnered more attention, after making its debut during Singapore Fashion Week 2017.

Ling Ling's designs are beautifully made with exotic skins that are sustainably sourced. They range from work totes to dainty crossbody bags—each piece a conversation-starter for any fashionista.

01 Asian Civilisations Museum

"With its beautiful permanent collections and thought-provoking exhibitions, the Asian Civilisation is a constant source of inspiration to me; a melting pot of different cultures that represents Singapore."

Collector

Mother of three, Goh Ling Ling founded homegrown luxury bag label, LINGWU, back in 2012. Her designs are created for modern, independent woman of today and range from small crossbody bags to bigger functional work totes made with a variety of animal skins. Follow her trail of unique experiences and shopping spots for a one-of-a-kind journey through Singapore.

02 Boutique Fairs Singapore

"Boutique Fairs Singapore is a bi-annual event that features over 100 Singapore designers and lifestyle brands. I recommend looking out for women's fashion labels like Rye, Reckless Ericka, MAX.TAN as well as lifestyle brand A Dose of Something Good."

03 Chip Bee Gardens

"Wander around under-the-radar cult boutiques, cafes, and old-school terrace houses built in 1950s and lose yourselves to this beautiful neighbourhood where time stands still. A few of my usual hangouts are Le Salon by LINGWU, Our Second Nature and Ong Shunmugam."

Yeoh Siew Hoon

Founder & Managing Director of Web In Travel

Back in 2005, online publications were only beginning to emerge and establish themselves in Singapore. Siew Hoon seized the opportunity and launched a travel newspaper online, Web In Travel (WIT). In the same year, WIT launched their very first event, with a vision of accelerating travel innovation, standing out in style and delivery as well as being content-driven. Today, the company has grown to stage conferences in Indonesia, Australia, Japan, Seoul, Thailand and Hong Kong, to name just a few.

Business event visitors to Singapore can look forward to unique experiences in its host of Meetings, Incentive Travel, Conventions & Exhibitions (MICE) venues. Performance and concert venues like the Singapore Indoor Stadium and WILD RICE @ Funan are aplenty while exhibition and conference venues such as the Sands Expo® and Convention Centre as well as the Singapore EXPO Convention and Exhibition Centre have been acclaimed as one of the best business event venues. Singapore also offers one-of-a-kind event experiences at venues such as the ArtScience Museum™ and Night Safari.

01 Arab Street

"I love it when art captures the sense of place. The bold and colourful art of Arab Street do just that, characterising the vibrancy and culture the street, making it fascinating to admire."

Progressor

Writer and tourism veteran Yeoh Siew Hoon, is fairly familiar with the shifts and changes of life. She started out as a crime reporter, travelled around the world and wrote for decades. Now, she is the founder and Managing Director of Web In Travel, an online travel technology publication that also organises events and travel conferences. Siew Hoon's list of recommended experiences in Singapore is sure to bring new insights to anyone.

02 Gardens By The Bay

"When I travel, I try not to go for the obvious and seek out the more under-appreciated sights. In Gardens by the Bay, I prefer the quieter side of Gardens East. From here, you can see the Supertree Grove framed by the amazing colours of tropical Singapore."

03 Changi Experience Studio

"I love creating experiences around content. That is why I am inspired by the Changi Experience Studio at Jewel Changi Airport. It blends technology with creativity and imagination to tell stories of Singapore's aviation jewel and the people behind it."

01

Geylang Serai Market

"As a teenager in the 1960s, I was very much drawn by wet markets in Singapore. One of them, Geylang Serai Market showcase Malay ingredients and culinary techniques that are part of Singapore's culinary heritage and culture even up till today."

Foodie

Violet Oon is widely known for being an author, publisher, speaker, teacher, television presenter, restaurateur, consultant, food ambassador and chef. Violet presently co-owns five restaurants that also carry a range of food merchandise that embodies Singapore's diverse culinary heritage. Explore Singapore's culinary landscape while visiting her recommended spots in the city.

02

Haig Road Food Centre

"Now, at a more advanced age, I am on a quest is to eat as much as I can at old-school hawker stalls—which may soon be a thing of the past. One of my favourites is putu piring, steamed rice cakes with a centre of melted palm sugar, from Haig Road Food Centre."

03

National Gallery Singapore

"After appreciating art in National Gallery Singapore, choose from a selection of fine dining experiences such as: three-Michelin-starred French restaurant Odette, Chinese restaurant Yàn and our National Kitchen by Violet Oon which serves Singaporean cuisine."

04

Eu Yan Sang

"Buy some freshwater seed pearls, said to keep skin complexions young, from Chinese medicinal shops. Have the pearls pounded into powder in a marble pestle and mortar and watch every single bit be brushed onto thin white wafer paper to bring home—it is a fascinating experience."

Zero

Co-founder of RSCLS

Zero

Co-founder of RSCLS

Co-founder of collective RSCLS and a lecturer with LASALLE College of The Arts, Zul Othman—better known as Zero—is one of Singapore's best street artists. His designs are intertwined with aspects of the Malay community. He prefers to dwell on the bigger collective picture and narrative of things, creating murals from the concerns of the society, the street art community and more. That is why each one tells a story and communicates much more than visuals which are pleasing to the eye.

During ARTWALK Little India 2019, his work DIFF/FUSION masterfully displayed the scents of traditional Indian spices such as chilli powder and cumin through strong colours.

01 Little India

"Over the last couple of years, many murals have been amassed in the colourful neighbourhood. You will be able to find my works there as well as the works of many other mural artists. Didier Matthieu's murals are definitely worth a visit."

Culture Shaper

Zul Othman—better known as Zero—is the urban artist behind most of the murals in the Bras Basah Bugis neighbourhood. Skilfully crafted, his creations are not just astounding or simply to leave a trail, each one communicates a deeper meaning. His list of beloved haunts allows travellers to experience the diverse cultures of Singapore.

02 Toa Payoh

"To fully experience life as a local, take a trip down to the Toa Payoh neighbourhood. Despite being a mature neighbourhood, it is vibrant as it is the venue of many community activities such as tai chi (ancient Chinese form of exercise) sessions in the park."

03 Soul Food

"Dine at a quaint non-descript nasi lemak (rice cooked in coconut milk, served with an array of side dishes) stall, Soul Food, along Aliwal Street. It is a familiar haunt of the graffiti artist community in Kampong Glam who enjoy tucking into the fragrant rice and delicious side dishes."

04 Aliwal Arts centre

"This is the place to go for arts and music performances and events such as pop-up flea markets. I thoroughly enjoy the Aliwal Urban Art Festival, where activities like graffiti and graphic art, skateboarding and music take centrestage."
